Quiet Broken On Korean Front By Bitter Skirmishes

UN Patrols Are Checking on Reds As They Prepare New Offensive

By Olen Clements

TOKYO, Friday, May 4—(AP)—Allied tank-infantry patrols, fanning northward out of Seoul fought a series of sharp engagements Thursday with Chinese Reds roughly ten miles from the old Korean capital.

One patrol went into Uijongbu, key road point some 11 miles north of Seoul, against only minor Red resistance.

TOKYO, May 3 — (AP) — Sharp skirmishes broke the quiet of the Korean front today as United Nations patrols probed Red forces building up for new offensives.

The fights were fierce, but small scale.

Two U. S. F-80 shooting star jets were knocked down today by enemy fire in Korea.

The air force said both pilots were presumed killed.

Four ground clashes involved Allied tanks rumbling north from Seoul. An armored column drove back a Chinese regiment after a two-hour skirmish northeast of Seoul, shooting it out with Red infantrymen over the last two miles.

A third tank column opened its guns on Reds northwest of Seoul.

To the east, in the Pukhan river bend, tanks won a brief clash with Communist troops.

On the central front Allied ground troops fought a six-hour skirmish with 150 Reds dug in atop a hill. Communists kept the hill. But an estimated two thirds of them were killed.

This fight was southeast of Chunchon, about 45 miles east of Seoul. Allied warplanes strafed Communists caught in the same area and to the northeast.

Attack From Air

Most planes flew north to blast the Red build-up for a new assault along the western and central fronts.

Action up to dusk Thursday was light—as on the preceding day, one of the quietest of the war. The Eighth army estimated Red casualties Wednesday at 435. Air strikes accounted for about that many more. The figures were unusually low.

"This lull had done wonders for our morale," one front line officer said.

But the Reds were busy—out of range of Allied artillery. Intelligence officers reported three Communist divisions were preparing to strike at Seoul from the northwest. Other forces were building up in the hills around Hwachon reservoir, north of the central Korean plain.

The buildups emphasized the warning of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth army, that the Reds were capable of striking another heavy blow at U. N. forces and probably were preparing one.

The wild hilly country north of Seoul and to the east, leading from the Hwachon area to the central plains, offers the Reds their favorite type of battleground.

They may come tumbling down from these ridges within 72 hours, a week or a month. Nobody knows for sure—except their leaders.

The hills afford natural cover, and make it easier to infiltrate at night. On the plains, U. N. guns and planes rock them back on their heels.

Estimate 75,000 Casualties

The U. N. command estimated the Reds in their vaunted spring offensive started April 22. They have another 300,000 available. These have not yet been thrown into the fight.

Nor have the Reds used 3,000 planes they are reported to have available.

Their night fighters came out for the first time Wednesday. Three Communist planes attacked a U. S. B-26 bomber as it dropped flares for night raiding aircraft. The B-26 crew said their plane wasn't hit but they may have scored on one of the Red planes.

One unidentified aircraft dropped bombs harmlessly in front of U. N. lines.

The U. N. air show continued at near record levels around the clock. More than 1,000 strikes were made Wednesday, many of them through curtains of anti-aircraft fire.

Transport and supply dumps were prime targets. In three days nearly 1,000 railroad cars and almost 1,000 trucks have been bombed. Many of the trains were sitting ducks caught on the tracks between blown out bridges and blasted tunnels.

Big bombers pocked Communists air fields. Marine fliers reported they killed 300 Reds in one attack.

Night intruder aircraft attacked along the East Coast by the light of star shells from blockading U. N. warships.

Naval craft maintained their months-long siege of key East Coast ports while others ranged up the coast to within 50 miles of the Siberian border.

Dr. Hunt Speaker To Kiwanis Club

An informative illustrated talk on "The Organic Causes of Indigestion," was given by Dr. Claude Hunt, Kansas City surgeon, at the meeting of the Sedalia Kiwanis club in Bothwell hotel Thursday noon. The subject matter concerned cancer and ulcer involvements of the stomach and in testinal tracts and held the attention of members long past adjournment time because of the clear manner in which it was explained.

The speaker was introduced by Ray Jiedel, program chairman, who also expressed thanks to John G. Crawford for arranging to have Dr. Hunt come here.

President T. H. Yount welcomed back Kiwanian Chris Roose.

Ten members of the Clinton Kiwanis club were present having come to pay their interclub respects to the Sedalia organization which sponsored the Clinton club nine years ago. Those from Clinton were G. B. Winn, Thornton Jennings, Spencer Parks, L. H. Ringen, R. P. Peak, Alfred Julian, M. D. Ellis, Fred Locke, C. W. Dickgraff and club president Floyd H. Pinkston, who made a short talk.

William E. Preston, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, spoke concerning a promotion idea for the state fair in which club members would wear a Missouri State Fair tie preceding the August fair dates.

Other guests were Dr. D. P. Dyer, with Frank Keyser; Dr. A. J. Campbell with A. H. Wilks and Ado Mansfield with W. J. Kennedy.

Kiwanians signed pledge lists to support the proposed scohol levy.

Four Injured as Car Overturns

Brought Hospital Here After Auto Badly Wrecked

One person was seriously injured and three others painfully hurt when the 1949 Plymouth sedan in which they were riding "flipped over" just before last midnight and rolled considerable distance down the pavement on highway 65 just north of the Windsor junction. The car was practically demolished.

Injured were:

Melvin C. Herider, 38, Marshall, driver, suffered a fracture of the left hip, severe contusion on the forehead over the left eye and multiple lacerations, cuts and bruises.

Bill W. Morrison, Gravois Mills, 18, cuts around the lower parts of both legs and ankles, bruises and a sprained back.

James Branson, 19, Versailles, bruises about the body, minor back injury and several slight lacerations.

The four were brought to Sedalia in the Ewing ambulance and taken to the Bothwell hospital where Dr. A. L. Walter and Dr. J. B. O'Neill attended the injured.

Taken to Marshall

Herider was transferred from the Bothwell to the Fitzgibbon hospital at Marshall this morning. Branson and Morrison were admitted to the Bothwell, while Miss Grace went to her home in Versailles.

Herider told State Trooper Pete Stohr he was headed north on the highway and as he came upon a car ahead of him applied his brakes and apparently one brake grabbed and threw him to one side. He was unable to explain coherently just what happened.

The car swerved sideways and rolled over at least three times, remaining on the concrete slab.

The three men were thrown out of the car through the wind-

Yes, Mess 'Sarge' Gets Ample Food

WITH U. S. 7th DIVISION, Korea, May 3 — (AP) — "Are you getting enough to eat?" the colonel asked the sergeant, at rigid attention.

"Yes, sir," snapped James Holler of Lee's Summit, Mo.

"What is your job?"

Gov. Smith In Accusation Of 'Lobbyists'

Wants Private Carriers Included On Equal Fees

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3—(AP)—Gov. Forrest Smith accused the "lobbyists of the big truckers and the gasoline interests" today of "operating on a public-be-damned attitude."

In a prepared speech, the governor said "it is time the members of the general assembly quit listening" to those lobbyists.

Smith spoke before a regional meeting here of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators. His denunciation of the truck and bus interests and the petroleum industry representatives came just a day after the Missouri House extracted a lot of teeth from the truck fee increase bill he had sponsored.

The House whacked about $300 off the total annual fees he recommended for the biggest trucks that can operate over Missouri highways. The bill, as it originally appeared, would have set an annual maximum of $850 on what Smith called "boxcar-like" trucks that are "pounding our highways to pieces every day."

Smith told delegates to the regional meeting that the private carriers — the ones who use big trucks, too, but only to haul their own products or merchandise — were damaging the highways just as much as the big commercial carriers.

"We have two classes of big truck operators making only a token payment for the use of our highways. They are the private and contract carriers," he said.

"They do just as much damage and carry as big a load as the common carrier. They should pay a similar amount. That is what the tax-paying public is expecting of the legislature now in session."

Reduced Fees Schedules

But the Missouri House saw things differently on that point.

The members reduced substantially the proposed common and contract carrier fee schedules.

"I say to you it is a sad state of affairs when the motor car owner, driving a car that does not weigh over two tons, pays at the estimated ton-mile rate of nearly four times the amount paid by the boxcar-like truck which is pounding our highways to pieces every day," Smith said in the speech.

Here's a further comparison between what the Democratic governor said in his speech today and what the Democrat-controlled legislature did yesterday:

1. The governor said "Missouri cannot continue its reputation as having one of the finest highway systems in the nation unless the state highway department has more money."

(The House adopted a resolution which would let the highway department handle only the revenue from the present two cent tax on gasoline. Any increase would be doled out by the legislature to the cities and counties for streets and rural roads. In the form of a constitutional amendment, it would need approval of the Senate before it could go on the 1952 general election ballot.

(The Senate roads committee approved a bill by one of its leaders to double the membership of the state's present four-man highway commission. It would make the commission bipartisan and would replace the present chief engineer with a department director.

(The House got in a fuss — delayed definite action — on a resolution demanding an investigation of how the highway department uses and accounts for its money.)

2. The governor urged an increase in the present two-cent gas tax.

(The House delayed action on a bill to hike the tax from two to three cents — partly because of light attendance and partly because a lot of opponents appeared to have their big guns trained on the bill.)

3. "It is time," the governor said, "we here in Missouri throw off the yoke of the selfish interests which have stifled and smothered highway progress in this state"

(Representatives of the bus and truck and oil interests were constant sideline spectators yesterday during action on two of the road program bills. Frequently they were seen in conversation with House members.

(On two bills the House had to delay action from Tuesday to Wednesday because the measures were besieged by amendments to change them drastically. Neither of the bills emerged from House debate anywhere near its original form.)

The governor has had a tough time with his plan to get more money for highways. A year ago, the people dumped overboard his idea of doubling the present two-cent gasoline tax. It was brought to a referendum election by the Missouri Automobile Club, the Missouri Petroleum Industries committee and by some members of the State Bus and Truck association.

Asks To Wait All Evidence

Truman Declares Then Will be the Time to Draw Own Conclusions

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—President Truman asked today that the country wait until all the evidence is in before making up its mind on his controversy with Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The President took this position at a news conference largely devoted to questions about Gen. Gen. MacArthur's testimony before Senate committees.

Mr. Truman said the general refused to permit the central intelligence agency to operate in Tokyo until Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, its chief, made a special trip to Japan to persuade him.

On Capitol Hill, MacArthur, testified that the central intelligence agency felt last November there was "very little chance" the Chinese Reds would enter the Korean war on any major scale.

The President was asked if he was confident that when the entire case is in, it would show he was justified in removing the general from his Far Eastern commands.

Mr. Truman said that when the facts are all in, the reporters would know the answer. But he said he had already given the answer.

Then he suggested to a questioner that he await the conclusion of all the evidence and then draw his own conclusion.

He said he thought it would be the right one.

On other subjects, the President expressed full confidence in William O'Dwyer, former New York mayor and now Ambassador to Mexico, who was criticized by the Senate Crime Investigating committee.

The President also told reporters that the new meat price order was up to him before its announcement and that he personally approved it. There have been complaints that the order will lead to a meat shortage and black markets by fall.

Heart Attack Fatal To Cass County Man Passing Through Town

Ira W. Owings, 75, Garden City, Mo., died at the Bothwell hospital about 6:55 p.m. Wednesday following a heart attack suffered while he was at the Viebrock service station on south highway 65 about 6:30. Mr. Owings had entered the cafe and was sitting at the lunch counter on a stool when he suffered the attack and fell to the floor.

He was rushed to the hospital in the Gillespie ambulance. Dr. E. L. Rhodes who was at the hospital attended him and stated death was due to the heart attack.

Mr. Owings, with his brother R. H. Owings, had been visiting at their old hometown, Cario, Mo., with friends since last Sunday. They started on their trip home about 3:30 p. m. Wednesday and arrived at the Viebrock station about 6:30. The brother told Mr. Owings they would "gas-up" and eat their dinner before continuing the trip.

Mr. Owings went into the cafe and sat at the counter to place his order. One of the waitresses placed a glass of water in front of him, and started to walk away when he suddenly slumped and slid to the floor. He was unconscious when he reached the hospital.

He was born in Randolph county, December 8, 1876. For several years he operated a confectionary business prior to his retirement sometime ago.

The body was taken to the Gillespie funeral home.

This morning the body was taken to the Atkinson Brothers funeral home in Garden City Funeral services and burial will be there.

Asserts That Some Reports Are Changed

MacArthur Says It is to Insert a 'Political Slant'

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today some of the reports he made as United Nations commander were changed in Washington to insert a "political slant" favored by the State Department.

MacArthur told of this in response to questions from Senator Russell (D-Ga) at the Senate inquiry into Far Eastern policies and MacArthur's dismissal from his commands.

The general said he was only "nominally" connected with the United Nations and made his reports to the Defense Department.

These reports were "subject to censorship by our State and Defense Departments," he went on.

He said that sometimes changes were suggested to him and he accepted them, but added that there was at least one case where he refused to accept the changes.

He said these were "changes which seemed to me to place a political slant upon a military officer's report, which were not warrantable."

MacArthur added:

"The Defense Department supported my point of view, and maintained that nothing should go in (to the United Nations) over my signature that I did not approve."

As to details of changes, MacArthur said "I have not got the files here, and I couldn't tell you."

He suggested the committees "call on the department" for information about them.

Russell said he thought perhaps MacArthur could recall the change he had spoken of as giving a report a political slant.

MacArthur replied:

"The general gist of it was, as I said, that it seemed to introduce a political slant which the State Department believed would be advantageous in handling of the various nations of the United Nations at Lake Success.

"I did not agree with my own military concepts, and the reports I put in were intended to be entirely factual, the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as far as I saw it."

Streams in State Are Bankful

KANSAS CITY, May 3—(AP)—Streams in Missouri still were running above bankful today and many acres of bottomland were inundated.

At Agency, Mo. the Platte river continued to rise and there was 18 inches of water on the main street this morning. The water was an inch deep on the post-office floor and merchants were moving their stocks from lower shelves.

River forecaster Gordon Hundeby said the Platte was 23.3 feet, which is 3.3 above bankful, but should start falling this afternoon.

Along the Missouri at Lexington, Waverly and Boonville the river was above bankful stages. At its highest stage in several years, the river is expected to crest at 26.3 this afternoon at Lexington, where bankful is 22 feet. Waverly, with bankful stage 18 feet, will have 23.6 tomorrow morning and at Boonville the stream should crest Saturday at 23.5 compared to bankful of 21.

At Kansas City the Missouri is expected to be near its peak this afternoon at 23.4 feet. It will fall slowly today, dropping to 21.8 by tomorrow, and then more rapidly the next two days. The crest at Jefferson City Saturday evening will be 23.7.

In the vicinity of Atchison, levees were being reinforced and St. Joseph reported a crest of 19.9 at 3 a.m. The river was down to 19.7 later and should continue falling today in the St. Joseph, Atchison and Leavenworth areas.

Facts Concerning Proposed School Levy

1. The assessed valuation of the Sedalia School District was $22,719,119.00 in 1923.

   It is approximately $18,000,000.00 today.

   This is a decrease of approximately $5,000,000.00 since 1923.

   A school tax rate of $1.00 on each $100 of assessed valuation produces, therefore, $50,000.00 less revenue than the same tax rate in 1923.

2. The Sedalia Public Schools received $328,143 from local taxes in 1930-31.

   Last year—local taxes amounted to $219,474.00.

Not to Attack Piecemeal

Committee Says That Method on Crime is Futile

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3—(AP)—You can't attack crime on a piecemeal basis with a law here and a law there. You've got to go back and study the problem, then revise the whole body of Missouri criminal law.

That's what the state senate's crime committee has to chew on now. The advice was given last night by Forrest M. Hemker of St. Louis.

He knows what is involved because he has been chairman of a committee which has been revising for the state supreme court the laws on how courts operate.

Hemker conceded it would cost money and take a lot of research. As a starter he suggested the legislature give its legislative research committee $25,000 to hire experts and do a complete job.

If you don't attack it that way, he said, "sporadically enacted, unrelated, isolated statutes will only add to the crazy quilt of overlapping, duplicating, obsolete criminal statutes which presently make up of the criminal code of Missouri."

Hemker said he didn't want to detract from the bills the crime committee already has introduced to close gaps in existing laws. But he emphasized that Missouri has a chance to look ahead and do a broad job no state has undertaken.

"The time is propitious," he said, "because the criminal code can be thus correlated with the Missouri rules of criminal procedure.

Saving Worth Price

"The investment will be substantial. But the cost to the public of the depredations of crime and the saving to the people indicate that the question is not to bring the best it has to the handling of the problem of crime in this state."

Hemker appeared after William L. Holzhausen, president of the St. Louis police board, testified there is no organized crime or gangsterism in St. Louis. Gambling, yes, but mostly only the "petty sneak handbook type of operation" known to police.

Capt. Joseph Wren, head of the St. Louis gambling squad, urged new laws to help catch the policy writers who do a big business among poor people.

Judge Louis Comerford of the St. Louis court of criminal corrections, told how drug addiction has increased among Negroes between 17 and 21 years old. He used to get four or five drug addicts a year in court, he said. Now it's four or five a month.

Like the police officers, Judge Comerford said the policy game is not organized on a national basis "but it's not a small business." It's vicious, he said, because "gambling supports everything else," in the underworld.

Pickets Protest Closed Hearing

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—A half dozen pickets paraded across the street form the Senate office building when General MacArthur arrived there today protesting the closed-door hearing.

The carried cards reading:

"Harry, you're off key again."

"Don't be a Missouri mule."

"We don't want a Truman-rigged hearing."

"Don't cover up blunders with secrecy."

"Russia knows our secrets. Why can't we?"

One of the pickets distributing handbills to passers-by said the group represented the Patriotic Citizenship Association, Inc., of New York.

The handbills protested "the Russian type investigation of General MacArthur," and said:

"Let's not have another whitewash of the State Department or another Pearl Harbor 'investigation'."

Names New Board For Stabilization

Increased Power Is to be Given On Mobilization

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—President Truman today named the members of the new wage stabilization board which will have increased powers in the mobilization program.

Six of the 18 members will represent the public and equal numbers will speak for labor and management.

Mr. Truman created the board after a revolt by organized labor leaders wrecked the wage panel set up originally under the mobilization program.

The new board will have authority to handle labor disputes in addition to passing on wage problems under the stabilization program. Labor leaders had demanded that power for the group.

Mr. Truman named to serve with chairman George Taylor the following five other public members:

Clark Kerr of California, a member of the old nine-member board, vice chairman; Nathan P. Feinsinger, professor of law at the University of Wisconsin; William M. Hepburn, dean of the Emory university law school in Georgia; John Dunlop of Massachusetts, another member of the old board; and Frederick H. Bullen, of New York, former secretary of the New York State mediation board.

The six industry members are:

Milton M. Olander, director of industrial relations for the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., Toledo, Ohio; Alexander R. Heron, director of industrial relations for the Crown-Zellermach Corp., San Francisco; Richard P. Doherty, director of employer-employe relations for the National Association of Broadcasters, Washington, D. C.; and Henry Bradford Arthur of Illinois, J. Ward Keener of Ohio, and Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., of Ohio, all holdovers from the old board.

Labor's six representatives are: Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CIO Communications workers; William C. Birthright, president of

Five-Star General Tells Senators Support to Ground Forces Soon End The Strife in Korea

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, May 3 — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today the way President Truman summarily fired him from his commands "jeopardized" the nation's interest.

WASHINGTON, May 3 — (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today if he had been allowed free use of his air power when the Chinese moved into Korea last fall "I haven't the faintest doubt that we would have thrown them back."

The Chinese moved in with large forces last November and MacArthur's armies suffered heavy casualties in a long and bloody withdrawal.

As he did when in an address to Congress, MacArthur said his proposals for hitting back at the Chinese Communists with air and naval power had been endorsed by the U. S. joint chiefs of staff.

He said he could only "assume" that Mr. Truman or Secretary of Defense Marshall vetoed the joint chiefs' ideas.

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur testified today the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended last Jan. 12 a naval blockade of Red China, air operations over Manchuria and supply support of Chinese Nationalists.

Since he was never allowed to carry this out, MacArthur said he "assumes" the Joint Chiefs were overruled by President Truman or Secretary of Defense Marshall.

MacArthur told senators in testimony behind closed doors that the joint chiefs of staff had presented to the secretary of defense on tht date the exact recommendations he made to Congress April 19 for prosecution of the Korean war.

In that speech to Congress, MacArthur had said he understood his views had been shared in the past by the chiefs of staff from the military standpoint.

The defense department later issued a statement saying the White House had authorized it to say President Truman's decision to fire MacArthur from his commands was unanimously approved by his principal military and civilian advisers.

MacArthur testified to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees. They are making an inquiry into his dismissal and into Far Eastern policy.

In his testimony, MacArthur also predicted that a few ground troops could wind up the fighting in Korea if backed up by the air and naval effort against Red China which he has urged.

MacArthur said the Jan. 12 views he attributed to the joint chiefs were arrived at in conferences between his headqaurters and Washington, adding:

"I was in full agreement with them and now."

MacArthur brought out a document he said was a copy "furnished to me" of the study made by the joint chiefs. He did not amplify.

Tells of Recommendations

Two Indicted In Vote Case

KANSAS CITY, May 3—(AP)—Sheriff George Alfred Hickam of Jasper county and James Madison Owen, former Carthage, Mo., city councilman were indicted today by a federal grand jury investigating voting conditions in Jasper county.

Sheriff Hickam was indicted on two counts, charging that he committed perjury when he testified before the jury here March 30.

Owen was named in two separate indictments. One charges two counts of perjury when he appeared before the jury March 30. The second indictment contained 26 counts. Each alleges that in the Nov. 7, 1950 general election in Carthage he paid each of 26 persons $2 to vote in the election.

Sheriff In First Term

Sheriff Hickam, a Republican, is serving his first full term and was not up for re-election at the general election.

Owen, who also has been indicted by a Jasper county grand jury on a felony charge of election fraud, is a Republican and a former councilman from the first ward.

David A. Thompson, assistant U. S. district attorney, said the vote buying did not change the result of the election and that the investigation was continuing.

The perjury charge against Hickam said he gave false testimony when he denied under oath that he received money used to pay persons to vote.

In testimony before the grand jury, Arthur Templeman, former city councilman and acting deputy sheriff election day, said Hickam told him the Madison Owenes would run their cars to haul voters to the polls if they were paid.

Templeman testified that on November 7, 1950 he collected 30 or 40 dollars from some of the candidates on the Republican ticket and took it to the county jail, put it on the jailer's desk and told Hickam "there's the money, now they can go to work."

Two Youths Dressed As Indians Rob Bank

WINONA, W. Va., May 3 —(AP)—Two youths, their faces streaked with paint like Indians on the warpath, robbed the Winona National Bank of from $40,000 to $45,000 Wednesday. It was the third holdup of the bank in the past six months.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Jack Robertson said the men were armed with a sawed-off rifle and forced bank cashier J. R. Hisey to surrender "every cent of loose cash" in the building.

The bandits were accompanied by a blonde girl. They escaped in a red automobile. State police immediately set up road blocks around this little southern West Virginia community.

Chamber Of Co mmerce Hits Uncertain Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, May 3 — (AP)— The U. S. Chamber of Commerce Wednesday called for an end to "frustration, uncertainty and political partisanship indicated in our present foreign policy."

The 2,500 delegates to the Chamber's annual meeting asked in a resolution for "full disclosure of the essential facts," so that there can be an informed public opinion, and then for development of a "sound foreign policy . . . without regard to partisan politics."

This resolution, unanimously approved, was offered from the floor by Powell C. Groner of Kansas City, newly elected vice-president of the Chamber, who said that from the facts so far given it is difficult to tell whether the country has any clear foreign policy.

People Must Be Protected

Groner's resolution said the nation should have a policy "to protect and preserve the best interests of all the people of the U. S. and of those other free peoples of the world who are prepared to cooperate fully with us in preserving the fundamental constitutional principles upon which this nation was founded."

Dechard A. Hulcy of Dallas, Texas, president of the Lone Star Gas Co., was elected president of the Chamber. The self-educated, 59-year-old Hulcy also is president of the American Gas Association, which speaks for the gas utility industry.

Hulcy succeeds Otto A. Seyferth of Muskegon, Mich.

But he said a lot of hard work and sacrifice will be needed to keep it that color.

Addressing the Chamber's 39th annual session, Johnston promised that the government will hold the dam against "a new inflation flood" expected abou' Christmas when the full force of the arms production program makes itself felt in greater buying power.

He warned that the inflationary trend needs "the sternest kind of steps to counteract it."

He urged industrialists not to let down until America is fully armed against Communism.

New Records Forecast

When that time comes, the economic stabilizer said, the country will emerge with a production potential for civilian goods that "dwarfs all going records." Controls may come off in two years, he said.

Johnston advised his audience to ignore the "fear salesmen" who predict that defense expansion will over-build the American industrial plant and open a road to depression.

"The inconsistency of these goose-pimple peddlers is almost a thing of beauty," he said. "They look ahead not to S-day—security day—for America, but to bust day for America.

Senate Group Demands Repeal Of New Price Order On Beef

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)— The Senate agriculture committee called Wednesday for quick repeal of government's new price control order on beef, saying it will cause "a severe meat famine leading to early rationing."

The order, issued by the Office of Price Stabilization, calls for progressively reduced ceilings on live cattle starting later this month and for a reduction of nearly 10 cents a pound at retail by Oct. 1.

Already, the Senate committee said, the order has resulted in producers' rushing cattle to market before they have reached their best marketable weights, thus causing "a loss of meat for consumers" in the future. The order also spells severe losses to growers, the committee added in a resolution.

Objections Considered Early

In Toledo, where he was paying a short visit, Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said his agency considered these objections before the beef regulations were issued.

"There certainly is no evidence to date that would cause us to repeal the regulations even before they have become effective and given a fair trial," DiSalle told a reporter.

In the House, Rep. Hoeven (R-Iowa) said the beef price rollback "may well result in a meat famine." Hoeven said reports from northwest Iowa indicate a black market already is springing up.

Hoeven also asid i na statement for the Congressional Record that "a strong movement of unfinished feeder cattle to the market" has developed since the order was issued.

He said the situation at the Sioux City stock market is "already reaching alarming proportions."

Hoeven declared the country is headed toward "the disastrous days of OPA," the World War II office of price admipistration, and he urged that those in charge of price control "immediately adopt a realistic approach to this critical situation before it is too late."

Jamestown Loses To N.K.C. Hornets

The North Kansas City Hornets walloped the Jamestown high school baseball team in the zone-number-one Regional Baseball tournament Wednesday afternoon at Liberty Park 15-5 to move into the quarter finals of the tourney.

Every player in the Northtown line-up connected for at least one hit while Coonce paced the losers with three long doubles.

N. K. C. fell behind the Jamestown aggregation in the first inning 2-0 but took the lead in the top of the fourth with a four run outburst. Jamestown came back in their half of the fourth to tally two more but couldn't keep pace with the Kansas City boys.

Jamestown was outclassed after the Hornets caught-on the slow curve of Jamestown's starting hurler, B. Sapp and slapped the ball all over the lot, collecting 14 base knocks. Jamestown gathered six safeties off of Mischlinch of the Hornets.

Republicans Hope To Gain a Seat

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—Republicans hoped to gain an extra seat today for Senator Brewster of Maine at the Senate inquiry into the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

But they probably needed agreement of the Democratic Senate majority to do this.

A closed-door conference of all 46 Republican Senators was called this morning (8:30 a. m. EST) to consider filling the vacancy on the foreign relations committee resulting from the death of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich).

Brewster has put in a bid, saying he will give up his present place on the finance committee.

Under strict rules Brewster could not qualify officially for the MacArthur hearings until the Democrats had agreed and the Senate confirmed his appointment.

Democrats have not yet said whether they will maintain the 7 to 6 party ratio on the foreign relations committee. They are entitled to two more seats on committees as a result of the appointment of a Democrat, Senator Blair Moody, to replace Vandenberg.

They are not expected to interfere with the foreign relations lineup.

Kills Children And Then Self

LENOIR, N. C., May 3—(AP)—An unemployed sawmill worker shot his eight children to death, then ended his life with a shotgun blast last night.

The bodies of Ralph Gragg, 34, and the children, ranging in age from three to 15 years, were discovered in their blazing home 10 miles north of Lenoir.

"The man killed the children children and then shot himself" to death, said Coroner Marshall Kincaid. He said no inquest would be held.

Sheriff George D. Greer said Mrs. Gragg had been living in another part of the county for the last month with a brother.

The bodies of the children lay two in a bed in the six-room frame dwelling in the Collettsville community.

Neighbors told the sheriff that the house "lit up all of a sudden" about 8:15 o'clock last night.

Gragg's body was found in a hallway. Besides it were a five-gallon can and a shotgun.

The coroner said the skulls of several of the children bore fractures.

The sheriff said Gragg was injured in an accident last November and had since been unable to work.

The children were: Katherine, 15, Christine, 13, Jimmy, 10; Peggy 9, Carolyn 7, Paul Edward, 6, Judy 4 and Rebecca, 3.

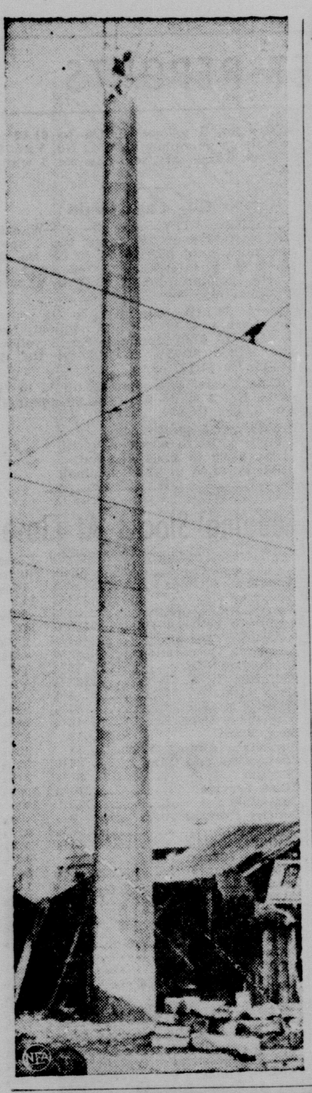
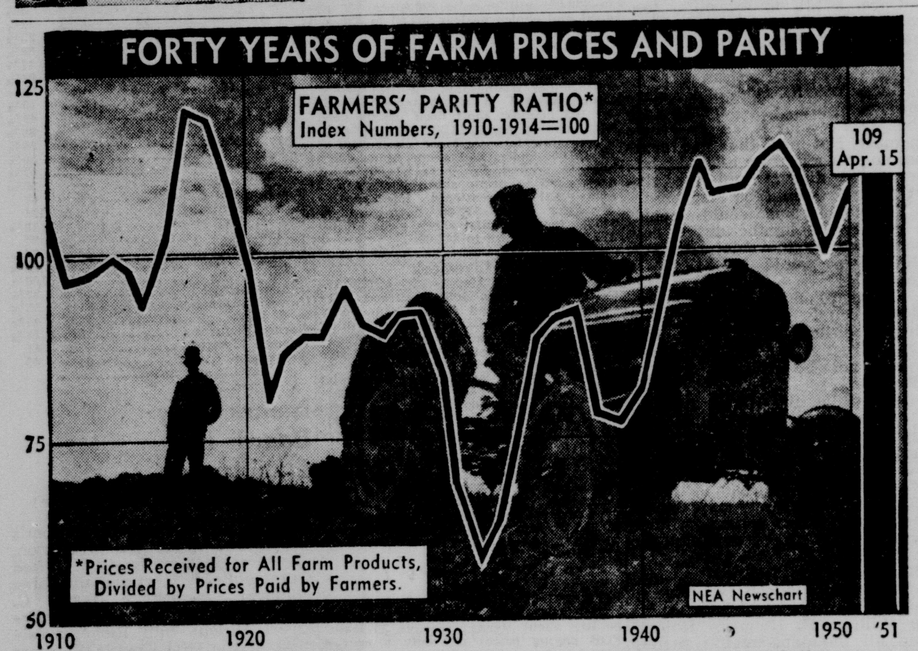
He Started Out at the Top . . .



. . . And Worked His Way Down

Perseverance is the word for this Japanese workman in Tokyo. He tackled an 80-foot reinforced concrete factory chimney with nothing but a sledge hammer and muscle. For weeks on end, he hammered and hammered until finally the smokestack was leveled and the site was ready for a new building. His demolition method is not uncommon in Japan, where many chimneys of factories destroyed during the war still stand.

THE HUNTRESS—These little piggies aren't going to market with Chicago model Margie Adams. They're just helping a feed manufacturer dramatize the beginning of a spring "runt hunt"—a program aimed at getting farmers to fatten 40,000,000 straight-tailed runts so they'll grow up and make their share of hams and bacon.



President Truman's proposal to "freeze" farm parity at the beginning of each marketing season is sure to meet stiff opposition in Congress. Some legislators predict they will still be wrangling over the issue when the present price and wage control law expires June 30. The Newschart above, based on data from the Department of Agriculture and the National Industrial Conference Board, shows how farm prices have stood in relation to the parity (so-called fair price) figure of 100 over the past 40 years. Farm prices are considered a weak link in present price controls. The law exempts farm products from control as long as they're below parity. The difficulty is that every spark of inflation sends the parity level a little higher, so that prices of farm items now below parity—such as potatoes, oranges and dairy products—might go sky high and still never reach parity's "magic level."

Sen. Hennings in White House Visit

WASHINGTON, May 2—(AP)—President Truman invited Senator Hennings (D-Mo) to the White House yesterday to discuss two federal appointments in Missouri.

It was Hennings' first visit to the White House to discuss patronage. He defeated Emery W. Allison of Rolla, who was supported by President Truman, in the Democratic primary election last year.

Hennings and William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic national committeeman, discussed with the president a vacancy in the post of collector of internal revenue for eastern Missouri, and the forthcoming appointment of a U. S. district attorney for eastern Missouri.

Hennings said it was "an exploratory conference." He did not reveal whom he might recommend for either job.

Junior-Senior Banquet Held

A formal Junior-Senior banquet was held at the high school building Friday night in Lincoln.

The theme of the program was "The Garden of Friendship." The auditorium was decorated in the school colors of red and white. "Welcome Seniors" in red on a and white archway framed the door of the auditoruim and in the center of the dining room was a bird bath surrounded by spring greenery. The baskets were decorated in red and white crepe paper with large crepe paper bows and on the back boards were placed the class motto "Not at the top, but climbing."

The dinner was prepared by women of the P. T. A. and served by the junior class girls who wore white blouses with skirts in pastel shades.

The dinner was served at tables covered with white and each was decorated with red roses, the class flower, and white narcissus in a low crystal bowl on either side of which was tall red candles with red and white skirts to form the centerpiece. Place cards were garden gates behind which stood nut cups filled with white mints, red hots and nuts. Napkins were white with red roses in the corners.

The room was illuminated with burning candles. The following program was presented: toastmistress, Marilyn Hedrick; invocation, Carrol Carney; welcome, "Garden Gate," Marilyn Hedrick; response, "A Bouquet for You," Earl Roark; class history, Willis Mothersbaugh; special music, Miss Estelle Fight; class will, Emma Lou Coffey; vocal ensemble, junior boys; class prophecy, Taylor Boring.

Senior class officers are, president, Earl Roark; vice president, Willis Mothersbaugh; secretary-treasurere, Angline Siercks; class reporter, Donald Lumpe. Sponsors are, Miss Lee Cannon and E. V. Wolkey who is also principal.

Following the dinner and program dancing was enjoyed by about 50 students and guests. The dance floor was separated from the dining area with a low white picket fence.

Skelton Signs For Millions

HOLLYWOOD, May 3 — (AP) — Red Skelton's manager said today the comedian has signed a fabulous seven-year contract under which he will earn "between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000."

The manager, Bo Roos, said the deal is between Skelton and the Proctor and Gamble Soap company for radio and television performances and has no options.

"I believe it is the largest deal of its type ever signed," Roos said.

It calls for Skelton to begin a weekly half-hour television show over NBC next October. Skelton, currently on radio over CBS, will also continue his radio shows but Roos said he does not know which network will get them.

Roos pointed out that the contract does not include the comic's income from movies, personal appearances or records "which should add up to additional millions."

Skelton goes to London's Palladium this summer for a personal appearance at $40,000 a week and makes films at MGM for $150,000 apiece.

Skelton announced last year that MGM had okayed his entry into television — heretofore banned under his contract.

MacArthur Testifies The Joint Chiefs Had Proposed a Blockade

retary of defense:

"That we are to continue and intensify now an economic blockade of trade with China.

"That we were to prepare now to impose a naval blockade of China and place it into effect as soon as our position in Korea is stabilized or when we have evacuated Korea, and depending upon circumstances then obtaining.

"Remove now the restrictions on air reconnaissance of China coastal area and of Manchuria.

"Remove now the restrictions on operations of the Chinese Nationalist forces and give such logistical (supply) support to those forces as will contribute to effective operations against the Communists."

MacArthur said that "as far as I know, the joint chiefs of staff have never changed those recommendations. If they have, I have never been informed of it."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, whose Nationalist government was driven from the mainland of China by the Communists, has a sizeable army on the island of Formosa.

MacArthur has placed the number of these troops at 600,000 and has urged their use in the war witr the Reds. Administration policy has been against this.

Edited By Censor

Although MacArthur testified behind closed doors, a stenographic report of his testimony—first edited by a military censor—was given to newsmen.

As he has before, the general protested that the United Nations forces wer not permitted to carry out the "great strategic concept of stopping the supplies of troops, of preventing the build-up" of enemy troops and the disorganization of supply lines.

"If you would take off (the prohibitions) and permit them their full capacity, I do not believe it would take a very great additional component of ground troops to wind this thing up," he said.

If this isn't done, MacArthur said, "you would not be able to supply enough ground troops in Korea to be able to safely clear North Korea."

MacArthur had questioned earlier whether there was any great threat of Russian action. He said he does not believe Russia is in position to "launch any predatory attack from the Asiatic continent."

The general said that even if ground troops fought their way to the Yalu river without being permitted air operations over Manchuria, "you would be in a position where the enemy could jump you immediately."

The Yalu is the boundary between North Korea and Manchuria. MacArthur added:

"I don't know how many troops it would take you to do that — ground troops — but they are quite beyond the capacity of this country to supply and maintain with our base 10,000 miles away —and do anything else."

hat amounted to predicting a stalemate in the Korean war, unless air and naval forces are turned loose to carry the fighting to the Chinese Reds in Manchuria.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the combined committees, asked MacArthur's opinion as to whether the Russians would move in Asia or Europe first.

"Or do you think they have any hard and fast plans in that direction but are awaiting events that might make one or the other area more propitious?" Russell asked.

Speculative Problem

MacArthur replied: "I would say that it would be highly speculative to attempt to guess, that it would be quite ridiculous.

"I believe that the Soviet high command, from the military standpoint, represents a high degree of efficiency. I do not believe that they would put themselves into any straight-jacket of inelasticity, any program of A. B. C., or June, July or August, which would determine it.

"I believe that, like all good commanders, they would be flexible enough to adjust their movements to the conditions that exist."

Russell asked whether MacArthur ever had submitted any estimate of the number of troops required to achieve the mission of the United Nations in Korea.

MacArthur replied:

"I have constantly asked for more troops than I was able to obtain, Senator—from the beginning.

The MacArthur drama threatened to break up the rest of the Capital Hill show.

When the Senate convened, there were not enough members present to do business. Most of them were at the hearings—opened to them all by a committee decision just before they began.

Backers of MacArthur's viewpoint in the Far Eastern controversy told reporters when they came out at lunch time they felt the general was making a good argument for himself.

Republican floor leader Wherry of Nebraska said MacArthur "is doing wonderful."

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) told reporters "there is no question" that the general "is making a good case for himself."

During his discussion of what Russia could, or might, do in the Far East, MacArthur expressed doubts the Soviets could long maintain an air effort in an all-out war. He said this is, of course speculative but added:

"My own opinion is that it would not be too long. I believe their efforts would deteriorate from the beginning of hostilities."

The five-star general was smiling and appeared at ease as he entered the hearing room. The doors swung closed behind him at 9:30 a. m. (EST) — half an hour late.

The delay was occasioned by a meeting of the two committees conducting the inquiry — armed services and foreign relations — at which they reversed an earlier decision and voted to invite other senators to sit in as observers.

Because of this decision, the hearing was moved from the smaller armed services committee room to the Senate caucus room. The latter chamber, seating 400, has been the scene of most big Senate investigations.

MacArthur made his way to the hearing room through offiee building corridors jammed with Senate secretaries and other office workers. They applauded when he came in sight.

Before the hearing doors were closed, reporters got a brief glimpse of MacArthur's meeting with the senators who were giving him a chance to tell, in question-and-answer session, of the differences which led President Truman to oust him from his Far Eastern commands.

MacArthur walked around the big horseshoe table in the spacious room and shook hands with each member of the committee and many of the other senators who were there.

He exchanged a few words with several. Among those he greeted were Senator McCarthy (R-Wis), a warm supporter, and Senator Kerr (D-Okla) who has criticized the general sharply.

At least half of the Senate appeared to be there. Others arrived after the doors were closed, having received late the word they would be welcomed to the hearing.

Open To All Senators

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—The hearings on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's firing were opened to all senators—but not the public—today by unanimous vote of the armed services and foreign relations committees.

To accommodate the 96 senators, the hearings were moved to the Senate caucus room. This is a big chamber, seating over 200, in the Senate office building. Original plans had been to hold the hearings in the smaller armed services committee room.

MacArthur and his aides were greeted at National airport by senators Bridges (R-NH) and Byrd (D-Va) as they came down the ramp from the four-engined Constellation, Bataan.

In contrast to his previous visit here last month, when a crowd of more than 10,000 welcomed him with wild cheers, there was virtually no turnout at the airport today.

The only high ranking military official observed at the airport was the commanding general of the Military District of Washington, Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren.

Plymouth Sedan Wrecked Wednesday

Four persons were injured, one seriously, about midnight Wednesday, when the above Plymouth sedan "flipped over" and rolled over three or four times on Highway 65 just north of the Windsor Junction. The body was smashed and the frame of the car twisted. The car was driven by Melvin Cherider, 38, Marshall, who suffered a fracture of the hip and other severe injuries. He was accompanied by Bill W. Morrison, 18, Gravois Mills, James Branson, 19, and Miss Geraldine Grace, 21, the latter two of Versailles. They were less severely injured. (Staff Photo) shield, Branson and Morrison on the west shoulder, while Herider was found approximately 30 feet ahead of the car on the highway. Miss Grace said she thought she was thrown out the rear door on the east shoulder of the highway.

Charles A. Hart, Baton Rouge, La., who was also headed north, said the car passed him a short distance south of the junction and as he came on saw the car swerve and start rolling over. Mr. Hart said he knew it went over three times and believed it might have been four. He found the injured lying outside the car and within a few seconds other motorists and neighbors had reached the scene and assisted them.

Mrs. Lester Mahnken, whose husband operates the Mahnken garage at the junction, reported she was awakened by schreeching brakes and the sound of crashing metal. She first called an ambulance and the state highway patrol, then with Mr. Mahnken hurried to the scene.

Mr. Mahnken towed the wreckage to his garage.

The group was picked up for fishing without a permit.

A stay was granted on the fine and costs in the Foster case for several days by Judge Blain.

Amendment For Limit on 'Gas' Tax Use

House Passes it As to Highway Body Spending

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3—(AP)—The Missouri House passed a proposed amendment to the constitution Wednesday to put a limit on amount of gasoline tax money the state highway commission could spend.

The vote sending it to the Senate was 91 to 5.

Offered by Rep. Charles H. Schindler (R) of Andrew county, it would let the highway commission spend only the revenue from the present two-cent gasoline tax. If the tax is ever increased above that figure, the revenue from the increase would be allotted by the legislature for rural roads and city streets.

If passed by both houses it would go on the 1952 general election ballot.

No More Money Says Schindler

Schindler said earlier he didn't think the commission should have control of any more money than it now has.

That was the idea behind several tax increase proposals in the past. They would have allotted part of the revenue directly to cities and counties for street and road purposes.

The highway commission was buffetted by a Senate committee today, too. The Senate roads committee approved a bill to expand the present commission from four to eight members.

Similar to measures introduced in the past, it was offered this time by Senators J. E. Curry (R) of Ava and William M. Quinn (D) of Maywood.

Once, a bill to set up a ten-man commission was passed by both houses. Former Gov. Phil M. Donnelly vetoed it.

Commission Bi-Partisan

Under the current bill, the commission would be bi-partisan with the state geologist an ex-officio member. Not more than one member could come from a single state senatorial district and the six-year terms would be staggered

The commission would appoint a director to handle duties now performed by the chief engineer. His salary would be $10,000 a year.

Not more than half the employes could be members of a single political party. But those who already are on the staff would not be affected by the provision.

Meanwhile, the House got into a quarrel over whether the state highway department is operating properly.

Reps. P. H. Ackerman (R) of St. Louis and William Pittman (R) of Dekalb county tried to get the House to act today on their demand that the department be investigated.

Report Causes Inquiry

They based their call for an inquiry on a report of State Auditor William H. Holmes. Holmes said all the department's money is not accounted for and the financial records are both confusing and incomplete.

But the Republicans' move has brought on a partisan fight over whether they should get immediate action. Finally, the House refused to take the resolution up.

Because of light House attendance, sponsors delayed action on a bill to increase the gasoline tax from two to three cents.

It is part of Gov. Forrest Smith's four-bill road building program. Two other bills in the series were advanced by the House by votes indicating rough going on final passage.

Cardinals Drop Top Spot by A Shutout

Spahn Pitches Braves to 5-0 Win Wednesday

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lucky Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves. Imagine having a pitching staff that makes his every wish a command.

"Want a shutout today?" asks Johnny Sain, or Vern Bickford, or Matt Surkont, or Warren Spahn. "Okay, skipper, as you wish."

It's as easy as that. Don't believe it? Just take a look at what this big four of the Boston Braves has accomplished this past week.

Thursday April 26—Sain blanks the New York Giants, 3-0, on six hits.

Friday April 27—Spahn whips Giants, 7-3, on five hits.

Saturday April 28 — Surkont blanks Philadelphia Phils, 3-0, on eight hits.

Sunday April 29 — Bickford blanks Phils, 1-0, on seven hits.

Monday April 30—No game scheduled.

Tuesday May 1—Sain disobeyed orders; loses 5-2.

Wednesday May 2 — Spahn blanks the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-0, on six hits.

Spahn Puts Braves At Top

It was Spahn's turn yesterday. The crafty southpaw, who led all National League pitchers with 21 victories last year, pitched the Braves back into first place. Only one Cardinal passed second base.

Pittsburgh's surprising Pirates made it two in a row over Brooklyn when Murry Dickson set the Dodgers down with five hits to whip them, 4-3. Don Newcombe dropped his first decision.

A two-bagger by Connie Ryan and a single by Grady Hatton featured a two-run ninth inning uprising that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 6-4 triumph over the Phils in Philadelphia. Ewell Blackwell scored his third win.

A couple of rookies collaborated to lead the Giants to an 8-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs at the Polo grounds. George Spencer pitched a neat six-hitter.

Cleveland and Washington remained tied for American League lead, the Indians shading the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, and the Senators shellacking the Browns in a St. Louis night affair, 8-1.

Nat Pitcher Sandy Consuegra limited the Browns to five hits for his third victory without a defeat.

Scoring five unearned runs on a couple of Chicago errors, the injury-riddled New York Yankees came from behind to defeat the White Sox, 6-4, for a sweep of a two-game series.

Singles by pinch hitter Pat Mullin and Johnny Groth accounted for a pair of runs in the bottom half of the 10th to give Detroit a 5-4 victory over the Athletics.

10 Smith-Cotton Track Men Place 3rd At Marshall

After the conference track meet Tuesday Coach Karnes took ten boys to the Missouri Valley Track Carnival, where they placed third in class "A" competition behind the winning Raytown Blue Jays and the Moberly Greyhounds.

"Whitey" Bryant defeated the shot-put champion of the Midwest conference, Butterfield from Raytown, with a toss of 44 feet six inches. Butterfield's mark was 41 feet, two inches. Bryant also placed second in the broad jump and third in the 220-yard run. He scored a total of 10 points.

Bill "Bones" Morgan ran a terrific race in the 440-yard dash, finishing third. Morgan's sweat clothes and track suit were wet and he was "cold" when the race began. He had taken only a half-lap warm-up. He was also on the third place mile relay squad.

Don Decker and Bob Shawver tied Butterfield in the high jump for first place. Shawver also ran the 220-yard dash and finished a close second.

Pummill Wins Hurdles

Don Pummill won the high hurdles with a 22.3 seconds timing. Unlike his condition in the CMC meet, he was relaxed and ran the best race of the year.

All the Smith-Cotton contestants placed. Croasby Brown took fourth in the 880-yard run; James Phelps won fourth in the discus and Gray Gardner, Larry Englund and James Schneck were on the mile relay team.

With 24½ points, they lacked one-half a point to tie for second place with Moberly.

Tigers To Play Jeff City Jays At Park Today

The Smith-Cotton high baseball nine will play their Capital city rivals, the Jefferson City Jays, tonight in a tune-up game for the quarter-finals of the number one Regional Baseball Tournament with the Lillis Catholic high school of Kansas City Friday night.

Manager Jim Ball hasn't named his starting line-up, but it will probably be the same that defeated the Edgerton high school, 29-0, last week.

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, May 3 — (AP) — Navy's football squad scrimmaged Georgetown on a recent Saturday. On Monday Georgetown announced it was giving up football.

. . . Navy coach Eddie Erdelatz just growled: "We only scored one touchdown apiece," and let listeners draw their own conclusions . . . A look at the spring prospectus which tub-thumper Johnny Cox dropped in passing shows the reason for Eddie's lack of optimism . . . Five ends who caught 41 passes for 605 yards last season are gone. So are Bill Powers, 60-minute halfback, and fullback Dave Bannerman . . . And there's no indication that the six Plebes on the list can replace them . . . Navy looks solid in the middle of the line and with Bob Zastrow at quarterback has a "solid" memory of last December's victory over Army. . . But this year's schedule doesn't look as bad as usual. Yale, Princeton, Columbia, and "open date" shouldn't be too tough—especially the last.

This'll Kill You

The other day Wayne Carter, a Hardin-Simmons U. athlete, went downtown to visit a dentist. He was in a hurry to have an aching molar yanked and rushed through the door remarking: "I'm ready if you are." . . . Greeted with blank, but possibly anticipatory looks, Wayne glanced around and found he wasn't in the dentist's office, but in a funeral home across the street . . . he lost no time shoveling off.

Cleaning the Cuff

Ben Thorpe, Milwaukee outfielder, weighed 230 pounds and couldn't hold a job with a class D ball club when he was mustered out of the Navy five years ago. His weight went down to 185 and his baseball class up to AAA after he had his tonsils removed . . . Frankie "Jay" Jacobs, Nick Masuras and Chickie Bogad of the Eighth avenue., social and fisticuffing set, cocktail spot with a number of noted boxers listed as "guest bartenders." They're smart enough not to let any managers behind the bar near the cash register . . . Three Connecticut sports editors, Chick Kelley of Waterbury, Frank Corkin of Meriden and Fred Post of Middletown, also work as full-fledged umpires . . . So far as we know, they're the only scribes who umpire on the field instead of from the press box.

Baseball's Compact Booklet Lists 281 Major Leaguers

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeature Sports Writer

NEW YORK—Each year new faces pop up on the major league scene. And, in similar fashion, old stars and well worn heroes fade from the big league pitcure.

The 1951 edition of "Who's who in Baseball," the compact little booklet that gives the lifetime averages of most of the guys who played in the big leagues last year, is now available for fans who like to keep up to date on such data.

From A to Z

Al Rosen, Indians — Jim Konstanty, Phillies

The front cover pictures Jim Konstanty, National League MVP for 1950.

Konstanty, incidentally, makes the book for the first time. Other first-timers who made a niche for themselves are Al Rosen who led the American League in home runs, and Walt Dropo, AL rookie of the year who tied for the runs batted in title.

Two first-timers who set National League batters on their proverbial ears are Jim Hearn and Sal Maglie, starboard flingers for the Giants. Hearn, who led the National League in earned run percentage with a 2.49 mark, spent most of the '49 season with Rochester in the International League.

Maglie With Top Mark

Maglie who had the best won-lost percentage, .818, with an 14-4 record, had spent the previous year pitching in Canada until his reprieve for jumping to the Mexican League.

Other newcomers to the book include Joe Adcock, Beto Avila, Chico Carrasquel, Joe Collins, Luke Easter, Mike Goliat, Mickey Grasso, Roy Hartsfield, Bill Howerton, Monte Irvin, Sam Jethroe, Al Kozar, Don Lenhardt, Don Mueller, Irv Noren, Johnny Pramesa, Bill Serena, Hank Thompson, Bob Usher, Ken Wood, Cloyd Boyer, Bubba Church, Bob Hooper, Bob Miller and Al Widmar.

Old Favorites Pass

Gone from the scene are such stalwarts as Luke Appling, Tommy Henrich, Mark Christman, Jake Early, Joe Gordon, Frank Gustine, Ken Keltner, Johnny Lindell, Danny Litwhiler, Stan Spence, Harry Walker, Red Embree, Harry Gumbert, Mickey Haefner, Tex Hughson, Nels Potter, Elmer Riddle and Ken Trinkle.

Tommy Holmes, whose name and record appears, is now player-manager of Hartford in the Eastern League, Eddie Miller is now teaching young Cardinal infielders and Bobby Brown is an interne in a west coast hospital. Al Benton was sold to Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League.

The book shows that Wally Moses is the oldest player in the big time. The Uvalde, Georgia, peach is nearly 40.

Youngsters in Service

The youngest are Del Crandell and Johnny Antonneli, both of whom wear the uniform of Uncle Sam. Also called to the colors were Art Houtteman, Whitey Ford, Danny O'Connell, Preston Ward and Curt Simmons.

There are no Smiths in the book this year. There are two Johnsons and two Jones. There are three players named Coleman—Gerry, Ray and Joe, and there are three Robinsons—Aaron, Jack and Eddie. None of the aforementioned are related. But there are a couple of brothers named DiMaggio who play in the American League.

Louis Easily Wins . 10-Round Decision Over Cuban Heavy

DETROIT, May 3 — (AP) — Joe Louis tip-toed into the ring and won an unanimous 10-round decision over lanky Omelio Agramonte of Cuba last night. It was the fifth win in Joe's comeback drive.

The Brown Bomber switched from his traditional shuffle, and bored in on Agramonte to floor the dark Cuban for a count of nine in the second round. It was the first time Joe had knocked down a foe in his comeback.

However, Louis, holding nearly a 20-pound edge over Agramonte, couldn't finish him off. In the ninth Louis battered Argamonte and left him dazed. But Joe couldn't land the one punch needed.

Hostile Natives Force Hunter To Cancel Trip

ST. LOUIS, May 3—(AP)—What's this world coming to, anyhow, when even a big-game hunter is prohibited from roaming the Brazilian wilds—just because some native head-hunters are on a rampage?

Sportsman Denver M. Wright of suburban Ladue, who recently left here on another hunting trip, discussed his plight in a letter to friends sent from the Brazilian interior.

"There have been so many killings lately," he wrote, "that even the government men hesitate to enter the hostile territory along the Amazon river."

Wright added he expected to visit another area—where the primitive tribes "do not have head hunting as a hobby.

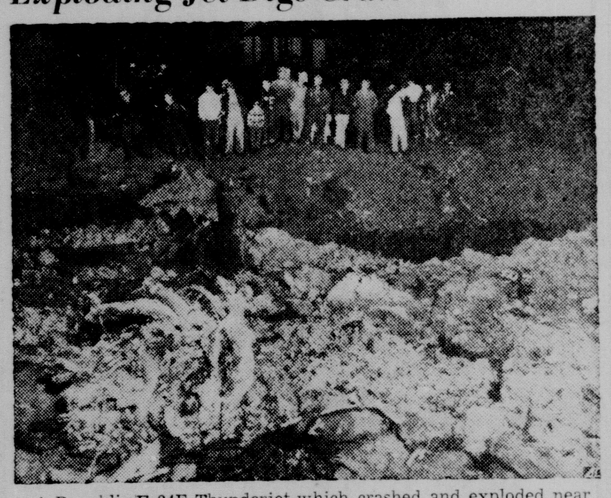
Exploding Jet Digs Crater



A Republic F-84E Thunderjet which crashed and exploded near Mountain Grove, Mo., May 1, dug this crater in the middle of a country road. The hole is estimated to be 14 feet deep and 20 feet in diameter. The pilot, Lieut. William H. Stutt of San Bernardino, Calif., on a training flight, was killed. Only parts of his body and of the plane were found. Witnesses said the plane, which crashed in a heavy thunderstorm was on fire before the crash. Note plane part, front; farm house, rear. Ahead of Schedule

Six-months-old John F. Gowan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gowan of Providence, R. I., has six teeth on display — a good average in any baby's league. Young John had his first two teeth come in at two months and added 4 more a month later. Right now he's starting to cut his molars. His mother says he has cried only two nights since he started cutting his teeth. (AP Wirephoto)

Just Keep On Living and Still Enjoy Life

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, May 3—(AP)—Who said the old-fashioned American grandma had joined the vanished dodo?

Who said they ought to find a real oldtime grandma and grandpa and put them in a museum for the costalgic joy of future generations.

Was it I who said the old folks had forsaken the old ways and spent their time now learning the samba and keeping night club operators up past their bedtime?

Okay, guilty. I said it. I'm wrong. I retract. It just turns out all I know are grandparents who pursue elderly glamor. Must be I just been circulating in the wrong circles. Got to mend my ways.

Scarce as cigar store Indians? Heck. Why the way the mail has been pouring in the country must be brimfull of old-fashioned grannies and granddads. And the tenor of their letters is this:

"What difference does it make whether we are old-fashioned or new-fashioned? Anyone who has lived as long as we have, and done as much, has got a right to run the last lap anyway he wants to."

Granted, granny

Young Folks Gallivant

A foxy grandpa scribbled on a postcard:

"Young man, you missed the whole picture. Grandma and I don't have to sit in a chimney corner, and we don't go to night clubs. But we make more money baby-sitting than we'd get if we took a government pension. Why? Because it's the young folks that gallivant today and let other people take care of their children."

Did I really say grandmas don't make quilts anymore? Well, listen to Grandmother Perry of Linden, Mich. — and I wish you could see her fine old-fashioned handwriting:

"I am a great grandmother 73 years old. I wash and iron for the seven of us and make four beds each day. Also made four quilts all by hand this winter, and I've made 25 quilts since I was 50."

Grandmother Perry says she doesn't go out much but she does like to have her gray hair fixed and wear red nail polish, and adds firmly:

"Now if these other grandmothers have a good time I glory in their spunk."

And was it I who said they'd rather look like Marlene Dietrich than Whistler's mother?

"Even though I don't look quite like Whistler's mother there's a little bit of me there," writes Grandmother Bea White of Lewiston, Idaho. "And I know that I'm as much loved by my own. Anyway, what grandchild wants grandma to look like Whistler's mother in this jet age?

"I still make quilts and sew and mend and wash for my own family. Besides this, old grandma works in grandpa's office from 9 a. m. till 5 p. m., and then I go home and prepare dinner."

Grandma White hasn't gone in for peroxide. She is a proud reddish-blonde — "the natural hair God gave me."

Grandmother Margaret Ingraham of Beverly, Mass., took time out from spring cleaning to say she enjoyed being old-fashioned and didn't drink or smoke. She has just finished a quilt.

"Although I have no white hairs — or just a few," she wrote, "I wear my hair in straight bangs. I don't resemble Whistler's mother, and 'Gramps' thinks I still look good to him."

Grandmother Ingraham had four sons in the last war and one is now back in the navy.

"I feel pretty young for my years," she says, "but although God let me have my boys back last time, I would be a sad sack if I had to go through it again. I pray for peace. But sometimes I think the only peace we have is a little in our hearts, and now and then moments of happiness as we go along."

All right, grandmas old and new, I've had my spanking. Now can I say to you what a friendly stranger once said to me? "Just keep on living!" Nobody ever wanted you in a museum. You're too much fun here.

For a fresh asparagus treat try serving them with fish fillets and cheese sauce. Add crusty rolls, fruit salad and a beverage, and you have a whole meal.

If you want to serve savory bread stuffing when you're preparing a broiler, just mound the stuffing under each broiler quarter; brush the chicken with butter or margarine and broil slowly until tender.

Next time you serve apple and celery salad top it with a mound of cottage cheese sprinkled with a little paprika.

Next time you make a pot roast try adding bay leaves and caraway seed for flavor.

Garlic shrinks rapidly, so keep it in a cool dry place in your kitchen.

Wiener Roast For RYO Club

The Tri-Community RYO club will hold its regular meeting at the Smelser schoolhouse this Wednesday, May 2. A wiener roast is scheduled.

Their April meeting was held at Smelser, and the president, Jesse McMullin presided over the meeting. The present members were pleasantly surprised by having several of the original members present. Roll call of the original members was read by Mrs. Herbert Reynolds, and the present members roll was ready by Anna Lee Harvey. The minutes of the March meeting were read and approved, and treasurers report given.

Old business consisted of the discussion of the square dance to be held. New business consisted of Jim Perry, assistant county agent, asking the club if they would like to visit the Morgan County R. Y. O. club on April 19th. Richard Warren made the motion that we try to attend the meeting in a group. The motion was seconded and carried. It was agreed to give the Knob Noster RYO members free tickets to the square dance in return for our visit with them some time ago.

All fifty-eight persons present introduced themselves, and the meeting adjourned. Mrs. Doris Warren led the group in several relays, games, stunts, and dances, then they retired to the basement for sandwiches and punch.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Byron Oswald and Sarah; Mr. and Mrs. John Silsby and children; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Runge, Ella Dee and Alberta; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reynolds; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kraft and Bobby; Eldon Miller; Fredia Rollings; Ervin Binkholder; Norma Meyers; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dow and son; Bill Giecke; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Giecke; Mr. and Mrs. Bob McCurdy; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ritchey and children, and Mrs. Ritchey's father; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clark and daughters; Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Edwards; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Siron and children; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lewis; Robert Cranfill; Joyce Kinner; Herman and Jesse McMullin; Jim Perry; Zill Leicher; Grace Lane and Anna Lee Harvey.

Fried scallops make a delicious main dish for Friday's lunch or dinner. To have the scallops a luscious golden-brown color dip them in flour seasoned with salt and pepper, then in beaten egg, and then in the flour again; fry in deep fat about five minutes.

Brick School Closes Term

A record crowd gathered at the Brick school near Tipton Saturday night, April 21st to participate in the closing exercises of the school. Patrons of the school and the surrounding communities brought well-filled baskets for a farewell supper for the teacher, Mrs. Kenneth Kruse, who has been employed there for the past several years, but who declined to return for the ensuing year because of the distance of the drive each day.

A short program was presented by the pupils of the school, prior to the serving of the supper, then the friends of Mrs. Kruse, who had journeyed from Sedalia and Smithton to put on a musical program, were introduced. The group included Mr. and Mrs. Dillon and Mr. Allen of Sedalia and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hunt and Miss Jean Musslin of Smithton. The cheers from the audience and the expressions of appreciation for the songs and instrumental music, kept the group playing and singing until midnight. In the words of many who attended, "It was the most enjoyable program ever presented at Brick school."

On the following day the teacher and the four graduates of the school took part in the county graduation exercises held at two o'clock at the California high school auditorium.

The graduates of the school are Robert W. Maples, Shirley E. Hegg, Lewis K. Kirchoff and Richard Connel, Jr.

Mrs. Kruse has accepted a position with the Akinsville board as teacher for the ensuing term.

Fund For Curtain From Plays

The Smithton Home Economics club met at the home of Mrs. John Colvin last Wednesday with Mrs. W. E. Selken and Mrs. E. E. Holtzen co-hostesses. Miss Laura Kruse had charge of the devotionals, with the club singing "Love Divine," reading responsively a portion of the Psalms and singing "This Is My Father's World."

The club voted to donate a sum to purchase canna bulbs to be set out on the safety island near the highway. Mrs. H. L. Hill reported that $100 of the $229.05 realized from the community plays was presented to the Smithton school to purchase a curtain.

Mrs. Lelia Griffen gave a reading. Mrs. Fred Harsch and Mrs. H. L. Hill spoke on "Color in the Home."

Each member told of a current event. There were 22 members and two visitors, Mrs. Clyde Gilbreath and Mrs. R. W. Byrd present.

A little diced cooked ham and crumbled crisp-cooked bacon added to a shrimp-and-tomato-sauce dish make it extra-special.

House Committee Withholds Testimony on Chiang Kai-shek

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—Locked in the files of the House Foreign Affairs committee is some dynamite-laden evidence by a former adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, which would be of great interest in the MacArthur-Truman debate if it were made public.

Secret testimony was given on April 6, 1949, before the Foreign Affairs committee by Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, former military adviser to Chiang. At that time Barr testified, among other things, that Chiang's staff officers were incompetent, lazy, derelict and in some cases downright dishonest. He described the surrender of some Manchurian cities to the Communists by Chiang's generals as so suspicious as to raise possible doubts of a sell-out to the enemy. In some cases, Chiang's staff officers were not even present when the troops under them surrendered.

General Barr also told how great quantities of American equipment which we supplied the Nationalist forces fell into Communist hands, and in turn made the Red conquest of China much easier and quicker.

In one case a big Allied supply base at Chinchow was left virtually and mysterously undefended. Considering the amount of American equipment stored there, the actions of the Nationalist Chinese had all the earmarks of a sellout to the Communists who shortly thereafter captured it. It was not long before all Manchuria fell to the Communists.

General Barr testified that he believed Chiang himself was honest, but that his troops, lacking leadership, long ago had lost the will to fight. For a while the war against the Communists on the Chinese mainland simply depended upon how rapidly Mao Tse-Tung's men wanted to travel.

For reasons best known to himself, John Kee of the House Foreign Affairs committee has been sitting on this testimony for two years.

Note — Another witness who could shed great light on Chiang Kai-Shek's fighting qualities and his real feeling toward the United States is Col. James McHugh, retired marine corps officer. McHugh was aide to Chiang Kai-Shek during the war, speaks Chinese, and is one of the few Americans who have written a textbook in the Chinese language. Experts such as Colonel McHugh and General Barr, who have lived in China and know Chiang Kai-Shek intimately, should be called as witnesses before the Armed Services committee.

Taft and MacArthur

Friends of Senator Taft report that the senator's visit with General MacArthur at the Waldorf tower, New York, netted only two things — Taft's firm conviction that MacArthur meant what he said about keeping out of politics, and second, that the general could out-talk the rather loquacious senator from Ohio.

Taft went to see MacArthur to find out discreetly whether the general had any political intentions; and second, if not, to lay some diplomatic groundwork so that the general might later get on the Taft bandwagon.

MacArthur was cordial, but politically negative. He gave Taft a shortened version of his congressional speech, quoting it in such verbatim detail that it almost seemed as if he had memorized it. Taft, who is no mean talker himself, could hardly get a word in edgewise.

Taft's friends say that he did not tell the general that he, the senator, was a candidate for the presidency though he did hint that the Republicans were most grateful to MacArthur for what he had done and that they would certainly want him to be a leading defense planner if they won in 1952.

However, MacArthur was noticeably cool toward every political overture and in effect repeated his ambition to "fade away."

History Repeats

Herbert Hoover, who has been the chief confidant of General MacArthur during the present big debate, paradoxically was on the other end of a somewhat similar situation when he was President of the United States.

Hoover made the mistake of ordering the court-martial of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, a popular marine corps figure, after Butler had stated in a lecture that Benito Mussolini, then dictator of Italy, had run over a child with his car but failed to stop. General Butler's court-martial was ordered after Italian Ambassador Di Martino had protested officially.

But immediately there arose a tremendous outcry from the American press and public, and for weeks Hoover was the butt of possibly more scathing criticism than Harry Truman.

The situation was somewhat comparable to the present MacArthur debate in that the admirals did not like General Butler any more than some of the leaders in the Petnagon love General MacArthur.

It was also significant that Hoover's popularity at that time had sunk to an extremely low ebb, comparably to that of Truman's today.

In the end, Hoover did what Harry Truman has not done. He abjectly surrendered and called off General Butler's court-martial.

Note — Hoover privately has been something of an admirer of President Truman, extolled his virtues at a gridiron club dinner, and has expressed private appreciation of the fact that Truman brought him back to Washington in various advisory capacities after the thirteen-year, anti-Hoover boycott by FDR.

Program by 4-H Club

Twenty-five members of the La Monte 4-H club and their leader, Mrs. Edward Gregory and eight members of the Pleasant Green 4-H club and their leader Mrs. M. C. Templeton had charge of the services at the La Monte Methodist church Sunday morning.

Several hymns were sung with Miss Rowena Hollenbeck at the piano. The platform was decorated with the club emblem of green and white and green and white streamers. The members wore green and white caps.

Rev. E. C. Wright gave the scripture and lead in a prayer. The responsive reading was led by Mrs. Templeton. Rev. Wright introduced the speaker, Professor Ihrig, superintendent of the Smithton school. His subject was "Natural Resources" and he told of the customs of our forefathers.

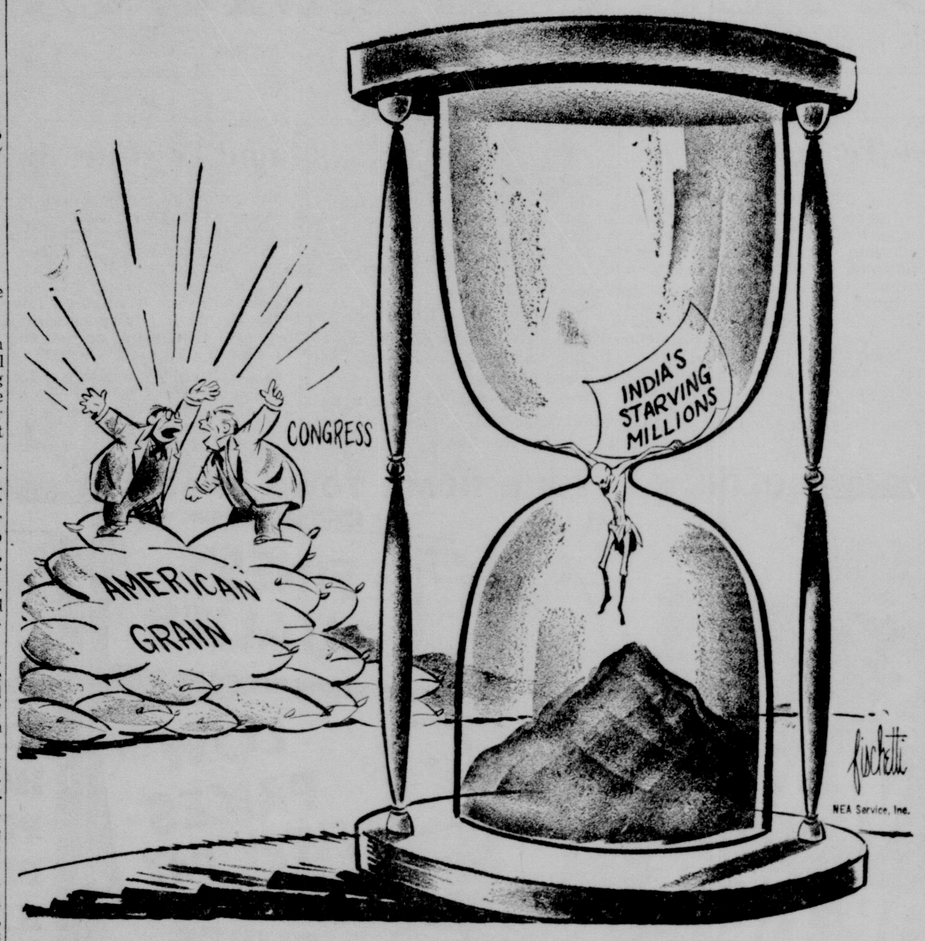
The Grim Debate



KILLER'S PACE

BY JULIUS LONG

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

XXX

PERSPIRATION rolled down Carl Prater's face. "I didn't kill Frannie Martin. I had nothing to do with it at all."

"Then why did you come here, Prater?" I asked.

"I'm going to kill you. I have to do it. It's that or ruin. I'm too old a man to see everything go that I worked for."

Before he could do anything there was a loud pounding on my door. Prater started and I was on him fast. I brought the heel of my right hand against his wrist and jarred the revolver loose. I shoved his face with my left and sent him sprawling. I scooped up the revolver and pointed it at him, but he didn't get up.

I thrust the revolver into my holster, went to the door and opened it. It was Merica and Sergeant Cost was behind him.

"Come in, gentlemen. There's just been an accident. Mr. Prater's suffered a heart attack. Or maybe a stroke—he looks as if he has high blood pressure."

Cost sneered: "We heard the ruckus! You smacked him down!"

Cost got City Hospital on my phone. Merica motioned and we lifted Prater to my davenport. He was heavy and cumbersome.

"I suppose I ought to congratulate you on cleaning out the rest of the LaGrange gang," said Merica. "They nearly got you, didn't they?"

"I guess they did."

"What were you doing in Valleyville?"

"Buying flowers for an old friend that had died."

Cost said: "Let's take him downtown. It's about time anyway. He hasn't got much time to produce Frannie Martin's killer the way he boasted he would."

I indicated the prone figure on the davenport. "That's your boy. He was waiting for me with this." I took out the nickel-plated revolver and passed it over to Merica.

"I took it away from him, and the excitement was too much for his heart. Or his blood pressure. Anyway, he killed Frannie Martin—that's certain. He heard me promise to turn in the killer in 24 hours, and he figured I had the goods on him."

• • •

MERICA eyed me disdainfully. "You're off the beam, Marshall. Prater couldn't have killed Frannie Martin. We know all about that mink coat Prater gave her. He looked sure-fire when we found out he was at the club that night. He, Wertheim, his sales manager, and two prospects. They all sat through the first show. Then they left. Later they came back and watched the second show. Prater and the two prospects, that is. Frannie wasn't in the second show—she went off the bridge during it."

"You're sure about the alibi?"

"Of course. There were plenty of witnesses as to the time of the crash and lots more as to Prater's whereabouts. The two prospects were respectable undertakers. I'm as sure of Prater's alibi as I'm sure he's going to sign that affidavit against you for messing with the evidence at the Bidault house!"

"So you'll take the affidavit of a man who broke into my apartment and tried to kill me!"

"You say he did! It could be the other way around."

I would have laughed if I hadn't known it would come out sour. I sat around woozily while the ambulance was coming, and when the crew had carried out fat-so, I told Merica:

"Pardon my manners, but I'm fagged out. Mind taking a walk?"

They left. But I hadn't said that I meant to get some sleep, and I didn't intend to for some time yet. I went into the bath and got out a little box of pills. I'm not a benzedrine-eater, but I realized that it was high time I began to kick my brains around a little so a bright answer would come to the top.

I wondered why Merica and Cost had dropped in on me. Maybe they had meant to grab me. The deadline had been almost up.

I went back into my bedroom and reached under some shirts into the back of my middle dresser drawer. I found the automatic I had come back to my apartment for.

I loaded the gun and put it in my holster and felt much better. Then I put out the lights and left my apartment without bothering to lock it. Everybody seemed to know how to make the lock.

• • •

I DROVE to the Brentwood Arms and parked in the drive. I went in the front door and up to the desk. The clerk looked me over with forgivable curiosity.

"Mr. Marshall to see Mr. Larry Stone."

The clerk looked as if he didn't think there was a chance that I would see him. He asked perfunctorily:

"Mr. Stone expecting you?"

"No, but he'll see me. You ring his apartment."

The clerk did so. There was hesitancy on the other end of the line, then the clerk turned back and said:

"Go right up. It's 10B."

"I know." I went to Stone's apartment. I pushed the button and Stone opened the door.

"What do you want, Marshall?"

"To talk to you. Inside."

He frowned. "I haven't time. I'm busy."

"But not that busy!" I had the automatic out. Stone's eyes widened, and he paled. "Open up!"

He opened up. "All right, Marshall, I'll talk to you. But put away that gun!"

"Not just yet." I gestured with it, and we went into Stone's sitting room. There was a half-empty highball glass on a coffee table before a davenport, and a cigaret tray filled with stubs.

President's Budget Bolsters Our Arms As 'Path to Peace'

Here are the highlights in President Truman's proposed military budget that calls for spending $40.5 billions in the fiscal year beginning July 1 to put the U. S. on the "best path to peace." More than two-fifths of the total outlay will go for new planes, tanks, artillery and other modern arms, including development of an atomic-powered submarine and super-carrier for the navy. Proposed strengths for each of the three major armed forces are given in the Newschart above. At right, are artist's conception of the Navy's proposed new ships.

Super-carrier, once scuttled, will be built for $218,000,000, and Atomic sub will be built by 1953. Hull alone costs $29,500,000.

Your First Remarks to Father Set Stage for Whole Evening

What you say to your husband during the first ten minutes after he gets home from work is more important than anything you say the rest of the evening.

Why? Because your first few remarks set the stage and they are sure to affect the way the rest of the evening goes.

Greet him with the remark that he's twenty minutes late, that the dinner is probably ruined because you've held it in the oven so long, and you'll put him on the defensive. A silly thing to do, if you really want the evening to be pleasant.

Meet him at the door and ask him first thing if he remembered the errand you asked him to do, and he is sure to think he is welcome only if he did as he was told. That's not a good start for an evening, either.

Give Him The Works

Tell him the bad news right off—such as that Tommy broke a neighbor's window or the washing machine is on the blink again—and you've weighted him down with problems before he has had a chance to relax enough to take them in his stride.

Tell him he looks tired, poor dear, and you'll have a tired husband on your hands all evening. If he does look tired, see that he gets a chance to rest instead of just reminding him of what a hard day he had.

Tell him he has got to hurry or you'll be late to the Joneses and you will probably hear some protests over the fact that you are going at all. Whereas, if you hadn't started rushing him the minute he walked through the door, he would probably have taken you to the Joneses without balking.

It's the first few minutes that set the stage when a husband comes home for the evening. After that, what you say isn't so important, for even bad news can be taken philosophically if the evening has gotten off to a good start.

This is National Baby Week

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

The stork delivered seven babies a minute right through 1950. The early estimate for last year exceeds 3,700,000 and the showing made so far this year points to another bumper crop.

National Baby Week is April 28 through May 5th.

Every day is Child Health Day for the parents of infants and young children, who know that building health is a round-the-clock job. Well-planned, well-rounded meals spread family cheer as well as nourish growing bodies. As for baby, he gets his food by spoonfuls and ounces, so each feeding is doubly important.

Today, for a successful feeding program, mother is advised to relax and not count the ounces too closely. Seems that shrewd baby will make up at the next meal for anything he has missed.

If you keep a recipe book of wholesome and interesting dishes for very young children, you'll find your menu problems solved.

Creamed Eggs and Asparagus
(Serves 4)

Two cans condensed cream of mushroom soup, ½ can water, 1 bunch fresh asparagus, 8 rusk or pieces of toast, 4 hard-cooked eggs.

Combine soup and water, blend well and heat to boiling. Cook asparagus. Place 2 rusk or pieces of toast on each plate. Slice one-half an egg over each rusk. Arrange spears of asparagus on top of eggs Pour creamed mixture over asparagus.

Meat Patties (Yield: 1 large or 2 small servings)

One can junior (chopped) beef, veal or liver, 2 tablespoons dry bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon undiluted evaporated milk, melted butter or fortified margarine, bread crumbs for rolling.

Combine the meat, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and milk. Shape into cakes. Roll in bread crumbs; brush lightly with melted butter or margarine and place on a greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until lightly browned. Variation: Heat ½ can strained vegetables and bacon. Use as a sauce over the meat patties.

Quick Sweet Potato Custard With Bacon (Yield: 2 servings)

One can strained sweet potatoes, 1 egg, slightly beaten, ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon butter or fortified margarine, melted, some crisp, cooked bacon — chopped for topping.

Combine all the ingredients except bacon. Pour into 2 greased custard cups and place in a pan of gently boiling water. (Be sure that the water does not boil vigorously.) Cover and cook 5 to 7 minutes or until a knife inserted into the custard will come out clean. Sprinkle the crisp chopped bacon over top before serving.

Baby's Diet Includes Meat

"Hope they're cookin' up something to keep us healthy."

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

Baby doesn't have to wait long these days to get his first taste of meat. The changing schedule, of course, is in line with scientific recognition of the superior contribution of meat in essential body-building proteins. Writing on "Protein in the Child's diet," Dr. L. Emmett Holt, associate professor of pediatrics, Johns Hopkins university says:

"The child must be given relatively more protein than the adult; the younger he is, the greater is his need for protein food. The young infant requires roughly 4 grams of protein per kilo each day, a quantity approximately double that which is necessary for an adult."

Naturally the age at which meat is introduced into an infant's diet depends upon the needs and development of the individual baby, and the orders of the doctor who has been watching the child's progress.

The early starting of baby on his first tastes of smooth strained meat is no longer a heavy chore for his busy mother. Experts in meat packing are catering meats right to baby's taste, ready to warm slightly or combine with other foods.

One baby meat producer now offers six strained meats, which have the added advantage of low fat content. Controlling fat has been one of the problems that has plagued the packers of strained and junior meats.

Even the use of extra lean cuts did not always result in a product acceptable for the very young. Extra digestibility is claimed for these low-fat content meats, along with true flavor and color.

Creamed Veal and Egg
(Makes 2 servings)

One tablespoon butter or fortified margarine, 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour, ½ cup whole milk, 1 can (3½ ounce) junior veal, 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped fine, salt to taste.

Melt fat, add flour. Blend well. Gradually add milk. Cook until thick. (Cook over low heat or in top of double boiler.) Add chopped meat and egg. Season to taste. Serve on toast, fluffy rice or baked potato halves.

MENU

BREAKFAST: Stewed prunes in orange juice, cream of rice cereal, crumb coffee cake, cofee, milk.

MOTHER - TODDLER LUNCHEON: Creamed veal and egg, sliced tomatoe.., wholewheat bread, butter or fortified margarine, bananas, tea, milk.

DINNER: Pan-broiled all purpose chicken, new potatoes, buttered asparagus, enriched bread, raw carrot sticks and celery, graham cracker crust chocolate pie, coffee, milk.

Creamed hard-coked eggs and potatoes make a hearty luncheon dish; sprinkle with paprika and finely minced parsley for attractive color. Serve over roast or split hot biscuits.

Austin Approves Korean Policy

NEW YORK, May 3 — (AP) — Warren R. Austin, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, declared Tuesday night victory in Korea involves much more than military defeat of the enemy and that the U. N. has scored some important triumphs in the 10 months of war in Asia.

This was Austin's reply to a charge by Gen. MacArthur that a policy vacuum exists in Korea. His speech to the New York State Convention of Masonic Grand Masters was regarded by many observers as an indication of the stand the Truman administration would take in the congressional investigation of MacArthur's ouster as U. N. commander, which opens tomorrow.

Austin said U. N. policy in Korea is "clear, positive and consistent." It has, he said, roused the free peoples of the world to the need for mobilizing their strength, alerted them to the danger of aggression, brought them to a peak of unity and strengthened their will to resist.

Among the triumphs, he said, were these: Russia's timetable of conquest was upset: Communist puppets failed to occupy all Korea; Chinese puppets failed to drive the U. N. from the peninsula; Russia was served notice of collective resistance if she strikes elsewhere; and Russia's designs for future conquest have been exposed.

Bishop Declares Nation in Danger

ST. LOUIS, May 3—(AP)—Episcopal Bishop William Scarlett of Missouri says the nation is in grave danger, "torn by great disunity at home and disagreement with our allies abroad."

Speaking at the 112th annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, Bishop Scarlett said Tuesday that Americans must soon make "fateful decisions on far-reaching issues."

"We would do well in the days ahead to forget personalities as much as possible and concentrate on the issues themselves," he said.

The Rev. Charles Rehkopf, St. Louis, was re-elected secretary of the diocese, and the Rev. Stephen B. Sheldon, Ladue, was named treasurer.

Elected to the diocesan council were the Rev. Charles H. Washburn, St. Louis; the Rev. Ernest Lynch, Hannibal; the Rev. John C. Tierney, Cape Girardeau; and F. A. Peel, Thomas H. Wagner and Robert C. Hyde, Popular Bluff.

PINT-SIZE PRESERVERS—Modeling the new junior-size life preservers of the Military Air Transport Service are two children at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O. The miniature life-savers were built especially for juvenile riders of MATS planes. They are designed to tilt the wearer's head out of water even if he's unconscious.

Winter Damage To Highways

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3—(AP)—Winter damage to Missouri's hard surfaced roads has been the heaviest ever experienced in some sections.

A repair need survey by the state highway department maintenance bureau showed Wednesday that repeated freezing and thawing combined with increasing traffic loads have caused unusually heavy damage.

C. W. Brown, chief engineer, said most damage was on roads in the southern and eastern sections of the state.

In the 12 southeastern counties, 118 of the 375 miles of armor-coated roads will have to be completely reshaped and resurfaced. In the section around Kansas City damage is about 75 per cent above normal.

Man-a-Minute to Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—The Senate-House economy committee Wednesday reported an increase of nearly a man-a-minute in the armed forces' civilian payrolls in the past year.

Chairman Byrd (D-Va) was reported planning to propose a special investigation of payroll policies in the services, which he described in a speech yesterday as "the most wasteful agencies on earth, both in manpower and money."

His committee, investigating non-essential spending by the government, released a report today that the number of civilian employes on federal payrolls soared in March for the ninth successive month.

Civilian agencies added 5,770 employees in the month, the report said, but the armed services added nearly 10 times that many, in a total increase of 56,166.

The report said the number of civilian employes of the services has risen 407,233 since March, 1950, to a new total of 1,744,525.

The increase, the report observed, would average out to "nearly a civilian a minute, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for the full 365 day year."

Fashion Flies to May Queen

Paris Designer Moves to Cairo to Finish Gowns for Farouk's Bride

Fit For a Queen: Germaine Lecomte, designer of the wedding trousseau for Narriman Sadek, bride-to-be of Egypt's King Farouk, places a $29,000 diamond shoulder strap on a gray silk net evening gown. It's worn by mannequin Colette, who has served as a model for the future queen. The bracelet she wears here is made of 64 yellow sapphires and 65 rose diamonds.

By Rosette Hargrove
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS — Paris fashion, like Mohammed, is going to the mountain. The mountain in this case is Narriman Sadek, the girl who will become Queen of Egypt when she marries King Farouk May 6 in Cairo.

Farouk is a well-heeled monarch, and wants his little bride to be equipped with the finest trousseau that Egyptian pounds can buy. So he's arranged for Parisian dress designer Mme. Germaine Lecomte to bring her work room and six midinettes (seamstresses) to Cairo.

In the royal palace, they'll put the finishing touches to the 30-dress trousseau and the fabulous wedding gown for Narriman. They will bring cases of luxurious fabrics and work them into the latest western fashions for the discriminating future queen.

Farouk wanted the dresses fitted and finished in Cairo, away from the prying eyes of western publicity. And his fiancee, who is a student of fashion, wanted to have a stitch-side seat as her trousseau was made.

"It came as a complete surprise," says excited Mme. Lecomte, "when I was requested to give a private showing of my collection at the home of Narriman Sadek when I was in Cairo last February. Although I had lunched and dined at King Farouk's table in Deauville last year, it never occurred to me to use this in connection with the royal wedding

"Naturally, it was a marvelous surprise when I did get the order, especially as I am not only doing 30 dresses but all accessories, including perfumes."

All the details —well, almost all —are closely-guarded secrets. But enough hints about the trousseau and wedding gown are let out to excite curiosity, envy and awe.

Some of these closely-unguarded details are:

The bridal gown is made of 30 yards of specially-woven white Lyons satin. It is trimmed with hand embroidery in silver, interspersed with hundreds of real diamonds, varying from the small rose to stones of several carats.

The bridal veil is made of re-embroidered real lace.

The cost of this ensemble alone represents what once would have been called a king's ransom. Now it's called a queen's trousseau.

The bridal gown, says Mme. Lecomte, represents more than 4,000 hours of work. The diamonds which are to be sewn on the gown must be guarded closely and counted each night and every morning. She has had to hire detectives to stand around the place.

Every one of the 30 models for the trousseau were chosen by Narriman Sadek, personally. With four girls, who will be her ladies-in-waiting, she looked everything over carefully.

To go with the 30 dresses, there must be 30 hats and 30 pairs of shoes. The hats are being made by Paulette, the shoes by Perugia.

There will have to be jewelry, too, and King Farouk is handling that end of the arrangements. He already has the reputation of buying jewels as other people buy radishes — by the bunch. Now he is being visited by leading Parisian jewelers, presenting their show-pieces for royal approval The bride-to-be is reputed to favor diamonds, sapphires of every color and topazes, in that order.

The total cost of the trousseau: Mme. Lecomte throws up her arms to the heavens, saying, "It must be millions and millions."

Next time you bake pears try sticking a few cloves into each half for good flavor.

. . . TO CART THE BABY BUNTING IN—Daddy doesn't have to go a-hunting—beyond the city department store, that is—to find a leopard skin for his baby bunting. A Newark, N. J., manufacturer supplies this simulated leopard skin carriage for parents who feel there's nothing too good for the little drooler.

Vary the way you serve potatoes. Team them up with cheese, for instance. One way to do this is to dice cooked potatoes and serve in a cheese flavored cream sauce; another is to slice cooked potatoes and place them in even rows in a shallow casserole. then sprinkle with cheese and broil until the cheese is melted.

Hot breads do not cost much to make and add a delicious touch to a simple and economical supper.

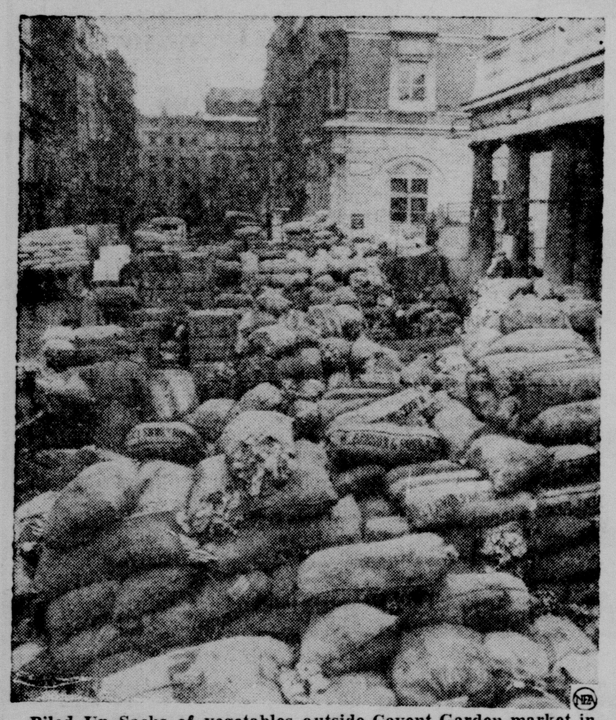
For Britain's Beef-eaters, Vegetables and Reindeer

Empty Hooks in London's Smithfield Market tell the story of England's meat shortage. In pre-war days, every hook was full.



Piled Up Sacks of vegetables outside Covent Garden market in London prove there are plenty of greens, but few cutsomers.

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Food & Markets Editor

LONDON — (NEA) — Covent Garden is London's great produce market.

On a gray morning at 6:30, rain drizzled over thousands of crates of cabbage and brussels sprouts and bags of potatoes.

Inside, under the glass roofs, miles of other foods stretched before me—oranges and grapefruit from Israel, bright red tomatoes from Canary Islands, South African grapes, Argentine pears, Canadian apples.

There were crates of carrots, too, and bags of onions from Holland, mushrooms from Surrey, lettuce and green beans neatly packed in boxes from France.

* * *

But the merchants told me business was 'way down. They said the Labor Government was running private enterprise with its 10 pence worth of meat ration.

"People just don't eat greens and vegtables and fruits unless they have a large joint to go with them," they argued.

A uniformed guard, employed by the market, pointed toward trucks laden with more produce. "Lots of those trucks don't belong to their rightful owners anymore." he said. "The government has just nationalized long distance trucks, reducing the owners to mere agents."

I met the same protest again in the Smithfield Central Markets, the largest dead meat and poultry market in the United Kingdom.

* * *

A former butcher whose father, grandfather and great-grandfather had all been butchers in Smithfield, now sells reindeer, goats and rabbits instead of beef and mutton.

"I'm a free enterprise man, myself," he explained. " I couldn't degrade myself or my father's memory by being an agent for the government. So I gave up being a butcher and sell these unrationed things instead."

Frozen carcasses of Swedish reindeer hung behind him. There were rabbits, too, hung up for sale, with a few goats and unplucked chickens, some of them purplish and many of them conspicuously underfed. Most of them had been imported from Australia and Ireland.

* * *

At a stand where turkeys and tinned luncheon meat from Poland and tinned cherries from Czechoslovakia were displayed, I told the merchant that in the United States the public would boycott products from Russian satellites.

He laughed dryly. "But we're hungry, you aren't" he said.

Barrels of pigs maws from New Zealand garnished another stand. These flabby, grayish pink things are the outer lining of a pig's stomach and today go into what was once the famous English pork pie.

Next to them were tightly packed faggots. They are dried blocks of animal offal—lights and livers. As explained to me at the London Press club, no one knows what goes into faggots today, but everyone knows faggots go into cottage pie, and that's why cottage pie has degenerated into the national riddle of England.

* * *

Over in the meat section of Smithfield Market, where the hooks, if placed end on end, would reach 45 miles, there were carcasses hanging on fewer than one out of every 10 hooks.

The business is still conducted by private firms, but they now act as government agents. The government allocates the meat, and the job of the butcher firms is to see that it is delivered.

A butcher touched a side of beef hanging before us. "That," he said, "is rations for about 400 people for one week." (I estimated roughly it was the amount 300 Americans would eat in one day.)

He added that the government has so thoroughly controlled purchase and distribution of meat that every ration book holder is guaranteed that his ration will be available at his local butcher when he goes for it.

* * *

Although there were thousands of empty meat hooks in Smithfield Market, I saw few empty chairs in London restaurants. Every man who can afford it takes one meat meal a day away from home in order to give his family more rationed foods. The government itself fosters canteens for industrial and agricultural workers.

At Simpsons on the Strand, once world-famous for its roast beef, I found beef and mushroom pie, curried beef, really plump and tender chicken. But I never found any roast beef.

There was roast beef, tender and rare, at Cafe Royal on Regent street. On other visits there I had fillet of pork and fillet of veal, with a rich sauce.

At Scotts, reputedly the best sea-foods restaurant in Europe, we had shrimp cocktail, broiled lobsters, green salad, Camembert cheese and coffee, plus an excellent white burgundy. The bill for four was almost £8, or £3 more than the average weekly wage of a worker.

At our hotel on Piccadilly, just across from Buckingham Palace where the king and his household were living on rations, we had bacon for breakfast on Saturday, and each Sunday, called fried egg day, we had eggs. On various menus were roast lamb, roast beef, baked hame, veal scallopini, roast goose, various chicken dishes, and always Scotch salmon or Channel sole.

* * *

The serving of these foods in resaurants is sanctioned by the government. The basis of rationing is an allowance which is in general related to the number of meals served by the establishment.

GAL 2FOR BRITAINS BEEF

In the pubs, too, there was food. Usually stacks of ham or cheese sandwiches on the bar and in some, a small resaurant where you can get an inexpensive but far from exciting meal. With a mug of warm beer in one hand and a tightly rolled cigarette in the other, the average Londoner can contemplate the stack of sandwiches with satisfaction.

There is deluxe non-rationed but mostly price controlled food available in fine shops—Danish and Holland hams in tins, glassed tongues, jewel-like fruit preserves, imported cheeses, olives and anchovies, an other such luxuries.

I found the regular customers of these expensive food shops unreserved in their hostility to the Labor Government. Leaders in the food processing industry and representatives of foreign, including American, food corporations feel about the same way. They say private capital could bring more food into the country.

But many serious observers feel that if private enterprise were permitted to import more meat, free of control, the price of that meat would be out of line with the average worker's income. This would defeat the Labor Government's policy of fair shares for all, which was the coalition government's policy during the last war.

If your family likes a dash of garlic in their salad put a little salt and a small garlic clove in your wooden salad bowl and mash together with a wooden spoon until the garlic disintegrates. Now put in the salad greens and dressing and toss well.

Sure, your food bill is high, says the Agriculture Department, but actually it takes about the same percentage of your income as it did during the "normal years," 1935-39. The Newschart above compares annual rates of per capita income with annual per capita food costs for those years with the same data for late 1950. Furthermore, the ratio is improving for the consumer, says the government. In 1947, food took 28 per cent of income; in 1948-49 it took 27 per cent, compared to 1950's 26 per cent.

You can take your choice of flouring or not flouring your meat when you're preparing a pot roast: but whichever method you use be sure to brown the meat well in a little fat before adding the liquid. Thorough browning helps to make rich gravy.

Mealtime Should be Pleasant

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

How happy is mealtime in your house? Many a doctor asks that question in an effort to trace repeated digestive upsets among youngsters. Often the trouble is directly related to a family habit of "having it out" around the dinner table.

The bickering might center around Jimmy's report card or his table manners, but the end of the meal found him resentful and "all riled up."

Nagging disturbs both disposition and appetite. Perpetual hurry and tension at mealtime soon build up unpleasant food associations in the child's mind.

The main meal can provide the most congenial hour of the day, offering good food and good talk and simple lessons in the appreciation of food. For small ones learn while they eat.

Often the first tastes, the likes and dislikes copied from elders at the table, will carry on through adult life. Every child is a copycat, so make sure that he copies good food habits.

Even the small baby knows whether his mother enjoys feeding him, or whether she is in a hurry to bundle him off to bed. Bottle babies who are held snugly during feeding and cuddled after it, share the same reassuring sense of security as the breast-fed baby.

Fresh asparagus is in season and it contains valuable minerals for children and all the family.

How to Serve Fresh Asparagus

1. Piping hot with melted butter or fortified margarine and a dash of freshly ground pepper.
2. With Lemon Butter made by blending ¼ cup fresh lemon juice with 3 tablespoons softened butter and ½ teaspoon paprika. Pour over freshly cooked asparagus.
3. Crunchy with Dutch Crumbs. Add ½ cup dry bread crumbs to ½ cup melted butter or fortified margarine. Brown lightly and sprinkle over 4 servings of cooked asparagus.
4. Creamed on Cubes. Add freshly cooked cut pieces of fresh asparagus to a cream sauce and serve at once over tiny, crisp toast cubes.
5. Cooked and chilled on iceberg lettuce cups with tomato slices and your favorite salad dressing.

MENU

BREAKFAST: Stewed rhubarb, ham omelet, ready-mix muffins, butter or fortified margarine, marmalade, coffee, milk.

FAMILY DINNER: Tomato juice, two roasted small chickens, stuffed, giblet gravy, parsley new potatoes, fresh asparagus with Dutch crumbs, soft rolls, butter or fortified margarine, vanilla Bavarian cream with crushed strawberry sauce, coffee, milk.

SUPPER: Cottage cheese and fresh fruit salad, sour cream dressing. minced chicken sandwiches, tea, milk.

Meet by Council Of Clubs Held

The Pettis County Council of Extension clubs met at the public library. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Albert Moore.

Mrs. Tom Perrin gave a report on plans for a tour for Home Demonstration week, and a discussion followed. A discussion was also held on Achievement day.

Mrs. Kurman Riley read a letter from a chaplain about the things soldiers in Korea could use. A thank you note from the library was read. Miss Lillian Watkins, Pettis county home demonstration agent announced that cooks books have been made up and are being sold by the Associated Country Women of the World.

The dramatics committee chairman reported and the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Ernest Biggs, parent education chairman. She introduced Mrs. Hemphill, district nurse, who spoke on "Child Care."

When you're using Holland herring be sure to freshen it before using. Cover the herring with cold water after you have put in a glass dish or stone crock, and soak it 24 hours.

If you want to cook fresh beets quickly pare and dice them, then boil in a small amount of water in a tightly covered saucepan until tender.

Cottage Cheese Is Important

COTTAGE CHEESE BALLS with lemon cream dressing—delightful dish for the youngsters.

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

Cottage cheese is high on the list of foods valuable in children's diets. It is a very substantial dairy food, rich in protein, calcium and other essential minerals and is also inexpensive and easy to serve.

Serve it mixed with a little cream and finely chopped scallions or pickles and whipped with sour cream and salt and spooned over chopped raw vegetables. Serve it as an after-school in-between-meal snack on crackers with tart jelly.

Here's a delightful combination —cottage cheese balls in two flavors served on crisp greens with a lemon cream dressing:

Orange Cheese Balls

One carton (8 ounce) cottage cheese, 2 tablespoons concentrated (frozen) orange juice, ¼ cup chopped walnuts.

Beat the cottage cheese until creamy. Add orange juice and chopped walnuts and blend until smooth. Form into six balls and arrange on one side of the platter. Garnish with halved walnuts.

Savory Cheese Balls

One carton (8 ounce) cottage cheese, 1 tablespoon horseradish, 2 tablespoons catsup.

Beat cottage cheese until smooth with horseradish and tomato catsup. Form into six balls and arrange on opposite side of platter to sweet cheese balls. Note: The combined salad serves 4.

Lemon Cream Dressing
(Makes about 1 cup)

One tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ cup whipping cream.

Combine lemon juice, mayonnaise and sugar. Partially whip cream and fold in. Serve with cottage cheese salad.

MENU

BREAKFAST Grapefruit topped with fresh strawberries, scrambled eggs, split and toasted corn muffins, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Clear tomato bouillon, whole wheat crackers, orange and savory cottage cheese balls on greens with lemon cream dressing, watercress sandwiches, tea, milk.

DINNER: Fried frozen perch, lemon slices, parsley new potatoes, broiled tomato halves, cucumber, lettuce and chive salad, French dressing, strawberry cream pie, coffee, milk.

If you have metal molds be sure to use them when you are preparing an entree, salad, or dessert that uses gelatin. The heat from the hot water in which you dip the mold when removing the food, penetrates quickly, and so makes unmolding easy.

Snap beans take to tomato sauce flavored with a little finely grated onion and the merest dash of allspice.

Lonely Job Even at Peak Of Decision

NEW YORK, May 2 -- It is always lonelier on a mountain peak than in a valley .

It's that way with military life, too. The generals are lonelier than the lieutenants. Sometimes I think they are among the loneliest of all men, particularly in combat zones.

To the ordinary private, who has so many bosses he sometimes feels like a hare surrounded by a high picket fence, the life of a general looks like one long dream of luxuriant liberty.

"Nobody can tell the general what to do," the low man on the army totem pole tells himself enviously. "He can go where he wants to when he wants to. He can bunk down when he wants to and get up when he wants to. He don't have to walk in the mud—he can fly over it in his own plane

"He can get what he wants to eat and all the liquor he wants to drink. He sleeps between sheets. He don't have to polish his own boots. He's got a high-class batboy to do all his dog-robbing errands, too. Man, how do they ever get jobs like that?"

And, of course, the average private envies the privilege which legend accords to most generals—the privilege of dying in bed instead of upon the battlefield.

The general, however, sees his own life in no such light. He feels he is hedged about by almost as many rules as the private, and often he rather yearns to have the private's sense of freedom when duties are done.

No Complete Freedom

For there is no such thing as complete freedom for a general. He is held down by orders from those above him and he is restricted in many ways by the opinions of those under his own command.

"I can't afford to let myself worry too much whether my officers and men like me or hate me," a general told me once. "But I do have to be sure they respect me — and that they will carry out my orders."

Being boss means having less plain ordinary human fun. When they throw a party on an army post, the commanding general and his lady arrive early — and they leave early. They can't hang around and let down their hair with the lower rank lads and their lassies. It wouldn't do. And generals who try to be "one of the boys" find out it's a mistake. Some of the boys are sure to misunderstand. Or some will try to take advantage of the situation. Authority must remain upright — and keep its distance.

"It isn't caste snobbery," one general's wife explained. "The general can't mix too freely in social life for fear the idea will get around that he's playing favorites. That wrecks morale."

In battle areas the general is really lonely. His companionship is even more limited. He cannot share his responsibility and there is no vacation from it. He rarely feels emotionally the death in battle of individual men under him. If he did, he couldn't stand the tension of being a general.

But a general traditionally does regard his command as part of his own body. And any considerable loss of his men — any loss he could have avoided — is as a spearthrust into his own side. That is part of his military creed, his code of life. And sometimes generals whose units have been hit too hard have to be relieved for the same reason a boxer has to retire. The hurt of repeated punches has made him too cautious.

Ordering other men to their deaths must by the nature of its task be a lonely job to men who live on the highest peak of decision. That is why, probably, the only person who can really understand a general is — another general.

Is Awarded Combat Infantryman Badge

WITH U. S. 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION ON KOREA BATTLEFRONT — (Delayed) — Private First Class James L. Harrison, husband of Mrs. Virginia W. Harrison, 301 North Emmet, Sedalia, has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's badge in Korea while serving as an infantryman with the 8th cavalry regiment.

This badge, which is only awarded frontline combat infantrymen, distinguishes the actual fighting man from the rear area and service troops in a combat zone. A soldier must be a member of an infantry regiment to be eligible to receive it.
